Alcohol in Every Brain.
About Delicate Babies,
Barter, Everywhere.
We Respect Cold Cash.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

A SHOCK for sincere prohibitionists comes from the gathering of chemists at Buffalo, N. Y. It is "proved conclusively for the first time that the human brain, liver and blood contain as one of their normal constituents small quantities of pure 100-per cent alcohol."

Toxicologists of Bellevue Hospital say they can extract alcohol from any prohibitionist's brain.

When we don't drink it, nature compels us to manufacture it. That is why he who swears off drinking eats so much candy.

A DELICATE BABY often causes the names of its father and mother to live in history.

Barrie, who wrote "Peter Pan," reveals the fact that when Thomas Hardy, who wrote fine novels and poems, was born, the doctor dropped the new born baby into a basket, pronouncing it dead. A woman investigated and found that the future genius was alive.

VOLTAIRE AS A BABY had fits frequently, and doubtless would have died in infancy but for the kindness of a good French priest, a friend of his deeply religious father and mother, who showed the parents how to dip their little boy in hot water to save its life.

The abbe later introduced Voltaire to Ninon De L'Enclos, who left Voltaire money to buy books. Perhaps if the abbe had been able to look ahead he wouldn't have saved the infant.

WE READ ABOUT Russia exchanging gasoline for breeding animals from Peru and high finance laughed at the "primitive barter." They stopped laughing when Uncle Sam began trading wheat for coffee from Brazil. The idea is spreading. A West Virginia college accepts farm products in payment for education.

The International Harvester Company takes wheat in payment for farm implements in Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas. In Indiana, the state fair accepts a bushel of wheat as the price of admission.

WE RESPECT property, or to put it more bluntly, cold cash, in this country.

A gentleman named Duffy had long been a criminal when he was "bumped off" by other criminals in a fashionable hotel of Atlantic City.

Before prohibition came, when crime was an industry of small profits, Mr. Duffy was often arrested, and often convicted.

Then came prohibition, to put crime on a highly profitable basis. From that time on, Mr. Duffy, who became a "Big Shot," was frequently arrested, but NEVER CONVICTED. Draw your own conclusions, and make them as charitable as you can.

IN THE OLD days, when a British nobleman had a son not bright, but physically strong, the son went into the army. If he had another son not bright, and physically weak, that son entered the established Church of England.

We never had, in America, an army or church so convenient for parents until now. The "follow-up man" career offers hope.

A WELL KNOWN citizen of New York said:

"My younger brother is not bright, never made a success. Suddenly, he had a fine new automobile, a big roll of bills. He was follow-up man for a big bootlegger.

"When the 'Big Shot' sent his trucks of liquor along the highway, my brother followed up, a little way behind, in a fast automobile. If the liquor trucks were stopped, and policemen or prohibition agents showed signs of interfering, it was my brother's job to drive up and offer the right kind of an argument, which he carried in his pocket."

It may please die-hard prohibitionists to know that their doctrine has made life brighter for some not very bright younger sons and brothers.

FRANKLIN SIMON, one of New York's ablest merchants, first to perceive the importance of Park avenue, is now included among merchants that "take business to the customer."

He will open a branch of his Fifth avenue store in Greenwich, Conn.

Other merchants have done the same. James Simpson, of Marshall Field, opened different stores in Chicago, and hopped 2,000 miles to Seattle. John S. Burke, head of Altman & Co., has opened local stores, and will open more. Macy & Co. and Gimbel Brothers spread over many cities.

The modern motto is:

"Take your business where the people are. Then, with the right advertising, and plenty of it, bring them in."

VARIOUS GROUPS in Palestine, including the older Jewish colonists, criticize Zionists that have done so much to develop agriculture and industry in the Holy Land.

Louis Lipsky, former president of the Zionist Organization in America, says Zionism needs a change in leadership. It has long been said that Jewish and Celtic peoples can rule any country but their own.

The Irish Free State Celts appear now to disprove that theory, and Zionism may do the same in Palestine.

COYNE DRIVE SEEN IN RAIDS

Police Swoop on 'Strip' Held Attempt to Wrest Control From Sullivans

Police swung into action today in the Strip battle ground and staged seven raids, interpreted as a chapter in the Mayor Kline-Senator Coyne drive to wrest control of the Strip from the Sullivan brothers, P. J., congressman, and Luke, alderman and member of the State Legislature.

Acting Inspector John Schnurr and Acting Capt. Thomas Gross, recently transferred into the Strip from the Downtown-Hill district, led the raiding squads. Confectionery stores, where police allege moonshine was being sold, were the places singled out for police activity.

ELSNER VACATIONING

Police Inspector Joseph Elsner, in charge of the district, has been on a vacation and with the election in full swing, Schnurr was transferred to the district and made acting inspector. It was hinted that Elsner might not find his inspectorship when he returns and that Schnurr will be given the post permanently.

Two of the three men arrested were held for court, charged with violating the Snyder act, at hearing before Magistrate James J. O'Connor, and the third was held for further investigation.

Magistrate O'Connor is a Coyne ally who was transferred from the Oakland district last Tuesday to preside at the Penn avenue police station, after the Sullivans' appointee, Magistrate McNamara, had been sent to Oakland where he could do no damage.

TWO HELD FOR COURT

Mento Termino, of 2215 Penn avenue, and Andrew Wolbsky, 2533 Penn avenue, were held for court this morning, charged with violating the Snyder Act. Frank Balestrieri, 318 Twenty-fourth street, was held for further investigation.

After the hearings, the police continued their raiding. Steve Gurgurich, 3225 Penn avenue, was arrested charged with keeping a disorderly house. Walter Goluric, of 121 Forty-fifth street, found in the store was charged with visiting a disorderly house. The store of John Cvetak, 3059 Penn avenue, also was raided and the proprietor arrested. In both raids police said they found moonshine liquor. Before these cases were docketed, the police returned with the product of two more raids.

Paul Wise, 2941 Penn avenue, and Joe Chester, 2929 Penn avenue, proprietors of stores, followed

McGovern Followers Demand Mansfield Decision on Support

Independent Leaders Disappointed at Silence

By MARK SHIELDS

Unless Senator William D. Mansfield, candidate for the Republican nomination for County Commissioner, soon declares his indorsement of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, also a candidate, the 32 independent Republican ward chairmen will seek to induce their followers to vote for only one candidate, McGovern.

This decision was reached by the ward chairmen last night at a meeting in the Keystone Athletic Club, at the same time Mansfield, in Brentwood, was urging voters to vote for two candidates, whether they were McGovern, Mansfield, or the remaining contenders, Senator James J. Coyne and County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong.

'SHOWDOWN' DECISION

In the discussion among the ward chairmen with former Senator C. M. Barr, McGovern campaign manager, it was the consensus that next to McGovern Mansfield was the most desirable candidate, but that he did not merit help if he continues his

BOY, 19, LEADS OUIMET

By JAMES J. KILGALLEN

International News Service.

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB, CHICAGO, Sept. 4—Cool as an iceberg in his first national tournament, 19-year-old Billy Howell, of Richmond, Va., sprang a sensation by leading the veteran Francis Ouimet, of Boston, 1 up, at the end of their morning round of 18 holes in their 36-hole match in the semi-finals of the thirty-fifth United States Amateur championship today.

Howell never showed the slightest tendency to weaken under fire. Jack Westland, Chicago's district champion, led Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., of Harrison, N. Y., 2 up, at the end of the morning round of the 36-hole match. Westland and McCarthy made a pretty match of it until the thirteenth. Then McCarthy weakened, lost two holes in a row, and was not able to wipe out his opponent's lead.

Polish Beauty Facing Deportation Weds

SANTA ANA, Cal., Sept. 4—(AP.)—The "Miss Poland" of 1928, Janina Smolinska, now a Hollywood motion picture actress, is the bride of Walter Grabowski, Los Angeles manufacturer. They were married yesterday.

Miss Smolinska recently became involved in deportation proceedings because she had overstayed her passport time in this country. Her case is before authorities in Washington.

Big Liner on Rocks, Flashes SOS Call

SHANGHAI, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—An SOS call was received today from the Hamburg-American liner Burgenland, which went on the rocks between Nagasaki and Shanghai in the Yellow Sea.

The Burgenland, a ship of 7,120 tons gross, was launched in 1928. The craft is 426 feet in length, with a 61-foot beam and 25-foot depth.

SCHOOL RIDERS JEERED BY BOYS

Staging a school strike demonstration in Hays today, boys broke off the fender of an unoccupied special trolley car sent to convey pupils of the Hays and Lincoln Place district to the Gladstone Junior High School, Hazelwood avenue.

As the car was halting at the White Bridge stop, Hays, a crowd of 75 boys swarmed around it. A dozen leaped on the fender, snapping it off. The motorman was compelled to remove the fender, causing an eight-minute delay in traffic.

A second car carrying six girl pupils, was jeered by the crowd with cries of "Scab." A sign placed on the rear, "Scabs on This Car," was removed by the motorman. The car proceeded to the school. Several pupils took regular street cars. One-way fare was paid by the Board of Public Education.

Two special cars with about 100 students of the Taylor Allderdice High School left the same district, the pupils paying their own fare. A dozen, unable to pay, were reported to have remained at home.

The Board of Education insists it is not legally bound to pay car fares of pupils, a stand which precipitated the strike, parents of many pupils contending the board is so obligated if pupils reside at remote points from school. The board will consider the complaint at its next meeting on September 21.

Few students were out on strike today, according to word from the Gladstone school. The number of absentees was 85 compared with 90 yesterday.

10 Women See Slayer Die By Gas in Nevada

CARSON CITY, Nev., Sept. 4—(INS.)—Nevada's "improved" method of capital punishment was employed today for the fourth time.

As the first rays of morning sunlight crept over the gray stone walls of the state prison, gas quietly snuffed out the life of Louis Ceja, 28.

The young Mexican, convicted of the slaying of Charlie Fong, wealthy Winnemucca Chinese cafe owner, ended a three months' stay in the penitentiary death cell when he breathed the almond scented deadly fumes generated by the chemical reaction of an acid upon a powerful chemical.

The execution was witnessed by 78 persons, including 10 women, who peered through the double glass windows which line the walls of the lethal gas chamber.

Ceja was granted his two last requests. He was given a fresh shave and hair cut and a drink of whisky.

The condemned man, who wore a bright red carnation on the chest of his prison denim shirt, waved his hand to the crowd and at 5:30 a. m. the "eggs" of death-dealing chemicals were dropped by three strings into their waiting pans of acid.

HAWKS' MARK MAY FALL IN AIR DERBY

Doolittle Streaks East at Record-Breaking Speed In Flight From Coast

BULLETIN.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Maj. James H. Doolittle, first of the eight pilots to arrive here in a high-speed dash today from Burbank, Cal., near Los Angeles, took off from Cleveland Airport at 3:01 (Pittsburgh time), within a few minutes after his arrival, headed for New York. He was making an attempt to break Capt. Frank Hawks' transcontinental record of 12 hours 25 minutes and 2 seconds. Doolittle's time to Cleveland was 9 hours 10 minutes and 21.2 seconds.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Jimmy Doolittle, former Army speed ace, streaked eastward today in the Burbank-Cleveland air race at a rate never before recorded for a West - East transcontinental flight and appeared to have an excellent chance to better the cross-country mark of Capt. Frank Hawks.

Doolittle's small plane hurtled into Kansas City 6 hours and 10 minutes after leaving the Pacific Coast, and after an eight-minute stop for gasoline zoomed on for Cleveland and possibly New York. He had refueled also at Albuquerque, N. M.

JOHNSON PRESSES CLOSE

Doolittle indicated before the start in California that he would continue to New York from Cleveland in an effort to capture the West-East trans-continental mark from Hawks. Doolittle's time to Kansas City today was two minutes less than Hawks required to reach Wichita, Kan., 175 miles westward.

The progress of several of the flight contestants in the Cleveland race had not been reported late this morning. These included James Goodwin Hall of New York and Art Goebel, Los Angeles, who planned nonstop flights.

Harold S. Johnson, Chicago, was pressing close on the heels of Doolittle, having reached Wichita in 5 hours 48 minutes, clipping 12 minutes from Hawks' time to that point. Johnson pushed on eastward after making hasty repairs to holes in the wings of his ship, one caused by striking a bird and the other by hitting a landing light on the Wichita airport.

Beeler Blevins, of Atlanta, reached Wichita in six hours 27 minute and was followed by Capt. Ira Eaker, Army pilot, in six hours and 59 minutes. They continued East.

BARRATT O'HARA

By AL GOUGH

Staff Correspondent.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 4.—Barratt O'Hara, famed Chicago lawyer and criminologist whom an inflamed West Virginia citizenry threatened to run out of town on a rail, left Clarksburg this afternoon.

AGED MAN LEADER

At the mob's head was a dodering old man waving his cane and shouting:

"We'll run him out on a rail. We'll not allow this racketeer to come down here and mix up in our affairs."

O'Hara, reported never to have had a client receive a "death penalty," had been mentioned as planning to participate in the defense of the alleged love racketeer confessed slayer of Mrs. Asta Buick Eichel, of Park Ridge, Ill., widow, and her three children, and

LIGHTS HINT SAFETY OF 'SUB' CREW

Mystery Flares in Arctic Believed Distress Signals As Public Anxiety Grows

LONGYEAD CITY, Spitzbergen, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Hope for the safety of Sir Hubert Wilkins and his Nautilus crew was revived by the appearance of lights in Eckmann Bay, seen from Longyead City last night.

Unless the lights emanated from Sir Hubert's submarine, in which he started on an under-ice expedition to the North Pole, or from some of the crew on the ice, their origin seemed inexplicable.

The local Governor's ship went out this morning in a search of the neighborhood. At the same time the fishing boat Welding, with a state inspector of fisheries aboard, is searching at the edge of the ice near King's Bay.

SEARCH DIFFICULT

The government today ordered the Fridtjof Nansen, icebreaker and Coast Guard ship, to proceed immediately from Harstad to Spitzbergen and be ready to search for the Nautilus on short notice. The ship built this year, is of 1,500 tons and has a crew of 70.

Experts said it would be difficult to search for the Nautilus because of the submarine's exact position never has been given.

Capt. Ruiser Larsen had two flying boats ready and said he could be at Spitzbergen within two days, whereas a steamer would take eight days. He said he did not believe the difficulties of re-connoitering over the ice insurmountable, but rescue work would have to be completed before winter set in at the end of September.

PLANES TO START

As now planned, the Fridtjof Nansen is to call at Tromsoe, to which point Capt. Larsen will fly from Bergen with two planes. The ship is to take two planes and their pilots aboard and steam for Spitzbergen, where a search by air would begin. Larsen said:

"Personally I do not believe there is any reason for anxiety. The reasons for silence may be numerous. The submarine's divings under the ice may have been so successful that Wilkins decided to continue, thus leaving no opportunity for telegraphing."

Capt. Oscar Wisting, who was Roald Amundsen's second in command on polar expeditions, said:

"The situation looks grave, but that does not mean that anything wrong has happened."

MRS. GARLAND DIES SUDDENLY

Mrs. Alice Bailey Garland, wife of Councilman Robert Garland, died at 12:45 p. m. today at her home at 5801 Baum boulevard. She was stricken suddenly, having suffered a stroke last night.

The daughter of Henry J. Bailey, Mrs. Garland was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and of the Calvary Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Garland leaves her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Roy H. McKnight, and two grandchildren.

Hoover to Spend Labor Day in Camp

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—President Hoover plans to go to his Rapidan camp in the Virginia Mountains late today to remain after Labor Day. The visit has not been completed.

'Sonny' Whitney to Marry Philadelphia Horsewoman

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The engagement of Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney to Miss Gwladys Crosby Hopkins, of Strafford, Pa., and New York, is announced.

Miss Hopkins is the daughter of the late Mark Hopkins, Jr., of Boston and Mrs. Stotesbury Hitchcock, of Strafford. She is the niece of the Marquise de Polignac, of Paris. She has been attending the races at Saratoga with Whitney.

Whitney, 32, is a turfman, having taken over the interests of his father, the late Harry Payne Whitney. His first wife was Miss Marie C. Norton, now Mrs. W. Averell Harriman, whom he married in 1923. They were divorced in Reno in 1929.

ROXIE ACCUSES TWO IN THEFT

Roxie Long, of 239 Calvert street, Baldwin township, leaped into the limelight again early today, bringing charges of burglary against Ralph and Casimir Petts, brothers, of 1604 Cliff street.

In an information filed before Squire Ira H. Lonkinson of Mt. Lebanon, the two brothers are charged with entering Roxie's garage, stealing three tires.

To investigators, Roxie and his wife, Virginia, 28, asserts the midnight prowlers forced entry to their home, knocked Mrs. Long down, stole $200 and other valuables worth $400.

The Petts brothers were committed to jail pending a hearing.

BLAZE SWEEPS CHINA PLANT

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Sept. 4.—Fire of undetermined origin last night destroyed a two-story frame building of the Mayer China Company here with a loss of $125,000, according to an estimate of Arthur E. Mayer, president of the company.

About 200 men and women were thrown out of work by the blaze which firemen battled more than two hours. Five companies from Beaver Falls and New Brighton responded to the alarm.

The destroyed building housed the power plant and carpenter machine and pipe fitting shops in addition to a warehouse where machinery, lumber and supplies were stored.

Although the origin of the blaze has not been determined, it was said to probably have been caused by a spark from a passing locomotive, the building was connected with the main plant by a bridge over the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad tracks. The main plant, nearby buildings and the Tenth street bridge were showered by burning embers.

COUNSEL BARES POOR BOARD AUDIT

Checkup Underway for Six Weeks, Court Informed At Hearing on Petition

An audit of the Allegheny County Poor Board's books has been in progress for six weeks and will be completed late today, Attorney Harry W. McIntosh, counsel for the board, informed Judge James H. Gray at a hearing in court to compel inspection of the records.

The hearing was on a petition by K. William Schuchman, of Dunmore, candidate for poor director, for appointment of a board of visitors under an act of 1852 to go into institutions and examine the books and practices of the Poor Board.

AUDIT NEAR END

In the argument Attorney McIntosh said:

"An audit of the board's books has been going on for six weeks by Ernst & Ernst and should be completed today. It covers the first six months of 1931."

Until 1910, McIntosh said, the County Controller audited the Poor Board records. The late Judge John D. Shafer ruled the Controller had no such authority and since then the board has employed certified public accountants.

NO VISITING BOARD

Schuchman contended there is no board of visitors as called for under the act of 1852. Counsel for the board and its individual members, H. H. Dixon, W. L. Henderson and J. Clyde Miller, contended that the act with respect to a board of visitors was repealed by an act of 1913.

Judge Gray instructed counsel for the board to file an answer to the petition this afternoon.

Ingomar Murder Charges Pressed

Murder charges preferred against Andy and John Grosick, brothers of Ingomar, by Mrs. Theresa Bricker in connection with the death of her husband, Harry, 35, on August 16, will be prosecuted today before Alderman George J. Anderson. The brothers were arrested on information of Mrs. Bricker following their release by Coroner W. J. McGregor.

CALL VOTE LISTS TO BALK FRAUD

Until early today the Board of Registration Commissioners was busy gathering up the loose ends of one of the most hectic registration days on record.

The voters' check lists of the first six wards were called in by the Commissioners, as were those of nine districts of the Twenty-second Ward. Books from approximately 100 districts were called in by the Commissioners presumably to check results of the registration and facilitate the work on the two remaining days, September 8 and 12, but incidentally for the purpose of preventing fraudulent registration. Without the voters' check list it is impossible to fake registration.

From 80 scattered districts the Commissioners last night struck an average to indicate the probable total registration. John K. Morrow, chairman of the Commission, said last night that more than 56,000 persons were placed on the books yesterday.

This figure, he said, would indicate that the registration will run close to the 200,000 mark. Although there were not as many registered as in 1929, the heaviest year on record, when a total of 188,765 persons registered in the three days, this was probably due to the fact that the polling places were closed promptly at 11 o'clock last night. Many hundreds were waiting at the polls when closing time came.

New Castle Helps Ohio Victims Of Cupid

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 4.—New Castle, insofar as Eastern Ohio is concerned, is Cupid's branch agency, and a fine high way leads straight from there to the Lawrence County Court-house door.

In August Prothonotary P. M. Campbell issued 104 marriage licenses and of the 104, 48 were for residents of Ohio.

The increase can be laid to a new Ohio law, effective August 1, compelling the romantic couples to give five days' notice before necessary papers may be obtained.

International News Service.

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 4.—Norman Thomas, several times Socialist candidate for President and Governor of New York, was free on $15 bail today, after he was arrested with 45 others charged with unlawful picketing in the silk strike here.

Among those who rode in a patrol wagon with Thomas were the Rev. Bradford Young, Episcopal clergyman of Brooklyn, and the Rev. Speare Knepel, of the New York Protestant Episcopal diocese.

A. J. Muste, dean of a labor college at Katonah, N. Y., also was arrested.

The four men were accused of leading about 200 pickets as they paraded in front of a mill in defiance of a ruling by County Judge F. W. Freeman. They were ordered to appear later for a hearing.

Thomas said it was the intention of the pickets to test Judge Freeman's ruling in the courts, carrying it to the United States Supreme Court if necessary.

ROBBED TWICE, BANK QUITS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Officials of the Mercantile State Bank today announced they were tired of carrying on business for the benefit of robbers and would discontinue their bank on December 15 after liquidating the business.

Robbers took $5,700 from the small bank at Broad and Morris streets on April 4, and on August 6 stole $965.

The announcement said:

"The bank is in excellent condition and we are paying off all clients, but continuation in business would be unprofitable. There's no money in the private banking business today, and we just decided to get out of it.

"We had two holdups this year and we are tired of carrying on a business for the benefit of robbers, who get only seven years when they are caught."

On September 1 the bank had deposits of nearly $200,000.

Pitt Authorities Fell Tree Holding Armstrong Sign

Just why an old tree in front of the medical clinic of the University of Pittsburgh, opposite the Armstrong headquarters at 3604 Fifth avenue, was cut down early today was being asked by Armstrong workers. For with the fall of the tree went a long Armstrong banner stretched from it to the headquarters.

Seven workmen appeared shortly after 6 a. m. and told Silas James, in charge of the headquarters, that he would have to remove the banner since they were going to cut down the tree. It was necessary, they said, as the tree stood in the path of a fence that is to be built.

Anyhow, the tree was old and dying, and not worth much for shade. Officials of the university gave orders for the work, it was said.

James took down the sign. He said:

"It may be all right, but I don't quite understand why the tree has to come down at this particular time, and so early in the morning, too."

He made no comment on the ethical status of the banner.

Those in charge of buildings and grounds at the university said tree surgeons had been unable to save the tree, an old maple, and it was ordered cut down preparatory to seeding the lawn. They had no objection to the Armstrong banner, they said.

WINIFRED STONER DECLARES HER THIRD MARRIAGE HAPP

DENIES PARTING STORY TOLD BY MOTHER

Message Misconstrued, Says Erstwhile Prodigy, Now On Hollywood Honeymoon

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Winifred Sackville Stoner Harrison, "infant prodigy" of letters during her girlhood in Pittsburgh, and Earl Winston Harrison, 31, her recently acquired husband, disagree with a New York report, attributed to Mrs. Harrison's mother, that their marriage is a failure.

In their Hollywood apartment, they asserted in enthusiastic unison that they were enjoying a perfectly good honeymoon, and denied they were on the point of seeking an annulment. They said then intended to move to Texas, home of the bridegroom, about the first of the year.

SEES MISUNDERSTANDING

Mrs. Harrison was quoted in New York yesterday as saying in a telegram to her mother there that the marriage, which took place August 18, had proved a failure and a separation was imminent.

The bride, who at the age of 6 years won wide fame through the publication of her first book, declared:

"Mother must have misunderstood my telegram, or someone did."

"I haven't the remotest idea of asking for a divorce or an annulment, or anything like that. We're as happy as we can possibly be and looking forward to our trip to New York, where mother will meet Mr. Harrison. I know she'll like him."

WILL CONTINUE WRITING

The Harrisons said they intended to spend a few more days in Hollywood before proceeding to New York. Thence, about January 1, they said, they will go to Wells, Tex., where Harrison is in the oil business.

Mrs. Harrison said she would continue her literary work. The former prodigy was married first to Phillipe Clinton de Bruche. Annulment proceedings were withdrawn when he was reported killed in Mexico. Later she was married to Louis Hyman, whom she divorced in 1930. Now she says:

"But this time I'm right. The others were bad dreams. This is the real thing."

MOTHER SURPRISED

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Winifred Sackville Stoner today said her daughter's statement that she was happy in her marriage to her third husband was "diametrically opposite" to the announcement the daughter made in a long distance call to her the day after the ceremony at Yuma, Ariz., August 18.

Mrs. Stoner, better known as "Mother Stoner," said she could not understand how Winifred could be living happily with her husband when "she said definitely they had parted." She added:

"But, if they are happy, so am I. I'm glad if she has changed her mind, and I'll be looking forward to receiving them when they arrive in New York."

FAMILY OF SIX DROWNS IN AUTO

Mother and Five Children Die as Car Plunges Into River Near Columbus, O.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A 29-year-old mother and her five children drowned when their automobile plunged from the road into the Scioto River 10 miles north of here last night.

The victims were Mrs. Sarah Jane Reichley, Columbus; Conrad, 9; Juanita, 6; Robert and Raymond, twins, 4, and Charles, 2.

Divers attempting to rescue the family were unable to open the windows or doors of the car, submerged in 20 feet of water. Later grappling hooks were let down and the car with the bodies was raised.

Reichley collapsed after reporting the tragedy. He said a defective steering gear caused the accident, relating:

"Just as I went through the door, the whole machine seemed to be sucked under the water. I went completely under the water, then came to the top and swam to the bank."

E. H. JENNINGS, CLUBMAN, DIES BY GUN

Oil Man's Widow Rushing Home; Victim Worried Over Business Affairs

E. H. Jennings, Jr., 43, long identified with the independent oil business in this district, was found dead with a bullet wound in his head in his home, 6200 Howe street, this morning, according to a report to the coroner. The cause of death was given as probable suicide.

Jennings' body, fully clothed, was discovered by his chauffeur in a lounging room on the second floor. A revolver with one empty chamber lay beside him. He came home about 11 o'clock last night, Deputy Coroner James S. Davidson said he was informed, but did not go to bed. He had been in ill health for a year and had not been at his office for three days this week, Davidson learned.

According to a statement made to Deputy Coroner Davidson by a business associate, Jennings had been worrying lately over business affairs.

Mrs. Jennings and four children will arrive home from the South today or tomorrow.

The younger Jennings was vice president and director of the parent company, an officer in the Pennsylvania Oil Company, Delmar Oil Company, Jennings Oil Company and the Kanawha Oil Company, a member of the Pittsburgh Golf, Fox Chapel, Pittsburgh and Rolling Rock clubs.

CHICAGO SCHOOL EMPLOYE SLAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Mortimer P. Enright, chief electrician for the Board of Education, was found shot and beaten to death on the ground of the York Golf Club near Hinsdale today.

Enright left his apartment yesterday to spend the week-end with his wife and child at their summer home in Lakeside, Mich. The manager of the building saw him drive off in his automobile with his value and golf clubs.

He had been shot five times in the face, and his head beaten. John A. Martin, of Downers Grove, who reported the discovery of the body, said the club's caretaker told him he heard two shots on the course about 9:30 last night.

SPAIN RESTIVE; STRIKE ENDS

MADRID, Sept. 4.—(INS.)—The general strike of 300,000 workers in Barcelona, which claimed at least three lives and many injuries, was ended today, but grave industrial unrest spread immediately to various other cities in the Barcelona area.

The Governor of Barcelona effected a settlement with strike leaders, under the terms of which it was understood the strikers would return to work immediately.

Troops were dispatched to Seo Deurgel and Lerida, where violent outbreaks were feared, and the strike movement also spread to Matano, Manreas and Tarrasa.

SHOT, CHASES ALARM HILLTOP

Mt. Washington and Duquesne Heights residents were thrown into turmoil early today by two exciting chases, during which one shot was fired at men suspected of being highwaymen who held up Arthur Leverick, 50, of 309 Clarence street, in Shaler street, robbing him of $96 and a watch. Two Negroes were arrested in a wooded section of Shaler street a short time after Leverick reported the robbery to Patrolmen Samuel Richetti and Sylvester Rodrinkinas. Later two more were captured after separate pursuits.

The suspects arrested were Thomas Green, 34, no home; Clarence Hagen, 18, of 2400 Berthoud street; Lawrence Reed, of Mollenauer, and Leon Teabury, 20, of the Helping Hand. Leverick identified Hagen, Reed and Teabury and at a hearing before Magistrate John J. Sweeney, they were held on a charge of robbery. Green was discharged.

CHEER FOR KING JAILS DUCHESS

MADRID, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—The Duchess de Mandas y Villa Nueva, once a member of the court of King Alfonso, has spent a few hours in jail at San Sebastian, apparently because she tried to out-talk the daughter of a cabinet minister.

Dispatches said she was arrested after she had crossed the border into Spain from France to attend to some personal business, although no specific charge was placed against her.

The duchess, bitter opponent of the Republic, created a stir in Bayonne, France, recently when she persisted in shouting "Long live the King" while the daughter of Minister of Interior Maura was toasting the Republic.

Senor Maura ordered authorities at San Sebastian to release the prisoner because of the personal nature of the incident that led to her arrest.

OFFICIAL, WIFE DIE IN PACT

DEDHAM, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—George C. Ingraham, 67, tax collector of Dedham, and his wife, Dorothy K., 65, were found dead today in their gas-flooded home. Police said they found a note indicating a suicide pact. Auditors had recently been checking the town's accounts.

They lay side by side on a sheet on the floor with gas pouring from a gas heater. Beneath a bunch of keys the police found this note in Ingraham's handwriting:

"Keys to safe. Nothing ahead."

State auditors have been at work on the town's books, but no report of their progress has been made public.

Friends said Ingraham recently had undergone an operation and had been in poor health. Ingraham had been town tax collector for three years and for many years before had been employed by the Dedham National Bank. He and his wife had been prominent in civic affairs.

REPAIR CROSS HELD MENACE

A cross on the steeple of St. Peter's and Paul's Church, Larimer and Hamilton avenues, nearly 200 feet above ground, is endangering the lives of pedestrians, according to three steeplejacks called to repair the steeple and cross.

The men, from Northampton, Mass., declared the cross, which has been loose for some time, could have been hurled to the ground by any high wind. It is about five feet high, and has a play of more than eight inches in its moorings, the men said.

Both steeples of the church are being reconditioned by the jacks, who seem entirely at home on top of the towers. One said:

"Many people ask me if I've ever seen bats in the belfreys that I've repaired. Well, I've never seen any bats, but not so long ago I took out more than 2,000 squabs from the spire of St. Paul's in St. Paul. After a while we get used to it up in the air, and we seldom have accidents. However, you know, one slip means death."

A few days ago Mrs. Menick received a demand for $100,00, being told the writer of the letter had "the mate to the razor found by your husband's body." A dummy package supposed to contain the $100,000 trapped Kilkes.

Shaw's 'Sweetikin' Notes To Ellen Terry Bared

LONDON, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—George Bernard Shaw in the role of an ardent lover of Ellen Terry, using terms of endearment which were fully reciprocated, is revealed in a collection of 300 letters which passed between them years ago and which were published yesterday in book form.

The letters, edited by Miss Christopher St. John, under the title of "Ellen Terry and Bernard Shaw," cover the period from 1892 to 1928, but the professions of love are chiefly confined to those written in 1896 and 1897, although all breathe warm affection and regard.

The striking and paradoxically Shavian feature is that throughout the period until 1904 the writers never met except publicly in theaters. Miss Terry opened the correspondence with a business question addressed to Shaw as a dramatic critic. She was then 44 and he 36.

The letters soon became intimate and the writers adopted such lovers' terms as "Sweetikin," "Ownest Own," "Poppet," "Duck," "Dearest and Everest," and "My Precious Bernie."

M'GOVERN ASKS JURY PROBE OF TAX BOARD

Declares 'Gigantic Plot' To Steal Election By Use Of Ghost Votes Has Begun

Pledging himself, if he is elected, to abolish the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, at a meeting last night at Elrod School, Brentwood Borough demanded that other candidates go on record regarding the conduct of the board and its members, McGovern said.

"The wholesale padding of the registry assessment lists in the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes is the first step in a conspiracy to steal the primary election. The second step will be a tidal wave of false registration and the third step will be the 'weighing' of the votes of the thousands of 'phantoms' by crooked election boards on primary election day.

SEES GIGANTIC PLOT

"The responsibility for the initial step in this gigantic plot to steal the election lies at the door of the tax board.

"A greater responsibility lies at the doors of the majority County Commissioners and the District Attorney, who should be as alert to prevent election frauds as he would be to prosecute them.

"Here we have the disgraceful spectacle of thousands of 'names added to the assessment lists, names of phantoms or non-existent persons, assessed from retaining walls of streets, vacant lots, storerooms, garages, empty dwellings and 'flop' houses. A typical example this year is the assessment of 119 'names from a property vacant for 10 years.

CALLS FOR JURY PROBE

"In this way the votes of the decent, honest men and women will be cancelled and nullified by election crooks.

"Everyone despises the petty election crooks sitting on election boards. What must be the reaction of the people to the shameful spectacle of men in high positions in the county aiding and abetting wholesale election thievery by the fraudulent padding of election lists? Clearly, this situation calls for the immediate summoning of a special grand jury.

"The present Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes is composed of incompetents, selected for their ability to deliver wards or districts or rewarded for ancient political services.

"Two years ago, in the mayoralty election, they permitted the addition of from 25,000 to 40,000 fraudulent assessments and were rewarded by Joseph G. Armstrong and Edward V. Babcock with salary increases.

"The people will do well to remember the names of these members of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes: George J. Schad, chairman; C. J. McBride, secretary; W. Noble Matthews, Emil C. Starke, John D. Graham, James Houlahen and John J. Cavanaugh.

"Particularly, the people should remember that M. Cavanaugh, with an income running well over $5,000 a year as burgess of Homestead, was given this job with an additional $5,000 by Joseph G. Armstrong, who professes to be distressed over the unemployment situation.

DEMANDS SHOWDOWN

"Armstrong, of course, appointed these men and, naturally will stand by them. One of the intended beneficiaries of these fraudulent assessments, he may be excused from remand of opinion.

"Each candidate should be asked to state his opinion of these fradulent assessments and the man responsible for them in plain, unmistakable English. Academic statements full of weasel words will not suffice.

BABCOCK LAUDS ARMSTRONG

County Commissioner Edward V. Babcock, in a broadcast over KDKA last night, spoke effusively of his colleague, Joseph G. Armstrong, candidate for re-election, and said:

"For my part I am convinced that his accounting of his stewardship merits his continuance in office. Among the entire field of candidates, I find no other with a record of accomplishments comparable with his and, with several of the large improvements yet unfinished and with tremendous developments yet to be undertaken the County Commissioners' office still needs Joe Armstrong.

"Mr. Armstrong has been so long in the public eye that his name is a household by-word. He has behind him so many monuments to his public service that his record need be his only platform."

Armstrong has been indorsed by the Italo-American Club of Beechview, according to its president, A. Esposito.

PARK JOINS WAR ON VOTE LAW VIOLATORS

District Attorney Pledges Services to Bar Group Seeking Honest Election

District Attorney Andrew T. Park has issued a statement offering his services and those of his office to assist the committee of the bar association appointed to co-operate in enforcing the election laws. He declared:

"The office of the District Attorney is being used only for the conduct of public business. We are prepared to apply its facilities to any contingency, notwithstanding my own candidacy. When I was appointed as Assistant District Attorney politics was not involved and in appointment to the office of District Attorney in April 1930 I was chosen by unanimous vote of the then sitting Judges and without any political intercession or influence.

PLEDGES FRAUD FIGHT

"I now recite this fact to confirm my absolute freedom from political entanglements so that it may be said that I am District Attorney of all the people and owe an equal duty to all. I believe in a free and uncontrolled primary and to affirm that principle I announced and am maintaining an individual contest for the office.

"I make this statement not for the purpose of soliciting support for my candidacy, but as District Attorney of Allegheny County with full appreciation of the duties and obligations imposed by the oath of office.

"As far as it lies within the power of the District Attorney of Allegheny County I assure to every candidate the full co-operation and support of myself and the facilities at my command to secure for them a fair election.

RECALLS CONVICTIONS

"It may be pertinent to recall that this office in February, 1928, in election fraud cases growing out of the September primaries in 1927, secured 89 indictments in cases including 357 defendants. Out of these 89 indictments there were 81 convictions, either by jury trial or pleas.

"Just as effectively were the guilty punished in fraud cases reported in the primaries of 1929.

"I will exert every possible effort to secure for the people of Allegheny County a clean, honest election. I believe there is adequate provision in our statutes to insure this desirable end. These statutes this office will rigidly enforce."

Disler Addresses 18th Ward Women

Pledging himself to the principle of letting city contracts to the lowest responsible bidder, Thomas S. Disler, candidate for Council, addressed a meeting of women voters of the Eighteenth Ward last night in Lindenthal Hall.

Golden Indorsed By Dormont G. O. P.

The Regular Republican Organization of Dormont has indorsed Robert S. Golden, of that borough, as candidate for county treasurer, according to William F. Bell, president of the organization.

Hall Caine Buried In Ancient Cemetery

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man, Sept. 4 (AP)—Sir Hall Caine, who died on Monday, was buried today in the ancient cemetery of Maughold Church on the north side of the island. Flags were closed and most of the townsfolk attended the service.

Phillips to Speak At Four Meetings

Congressman John M. Phillips, candidate for renomination, will address a meeting today of the Eleventh Ward Women's Republican Club, in Kirkpatrick Hall, College and Bread streets.

Phillips will speak at three meetings tonight: a workers' gathering at 720 Brookline boulevard; a meeting of the Fifth Ward Association in the Peoples Tabernacle, Howard street and Center avenue, and a meeting in Liberty School, Filbert street and Ellsworth avenue, Seventh Ward.

Musmanno Parade Set for Tuesday

An automobile parade to promote the candidacy of Representative M. A. Musmanno for Judge of County Court will be held next Tuesday night, according to Miss Anna Pace, of 1243 Page street, North Side, who is accepting entries.

The parade will form at 7:30 p. m. at Ridge avenue and Irwin street, North Side, and proceed along Ohio River boulevard, to McKees Rocks Bridge, across the bridge through McKees Rocks to Pittsburgh to East Liberty.

Appointed Judges Rapped By Ewing

Branding as presumptuous and audacious the claim of the seven sitting Judges that they are experienced and have proven their worth, William M. Ewing, candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, asked an audience in Schiller Glocke Hall, South Side, to elect independent Judges and not those whose claim to the bench is by appointment.

Ewing will speak at the independent Republican headquarters in East Liberty and at Port Vue tonight.

Shaffer Indorsed By Sixth Ward Club

At a meeting last night in Polish Falcons Hall, Brereton Hall, the Sixth Ward unit of the Army and Navy Republican Club indorsed Maj. C. B. Shaffer as candidate for City Council, according to Robert G. Miller, president of the club.

Maj. Shaffer, who claims to be the only independent candidate for Council, declared that he is confident the uncontrolled voters of the city, who are tired of machine politics, will elect him.

Evans Urges Reform Of Lower Courts

Raymond D. Evans, candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court, has recommended the creation of a system to regulate the practices of aldermen and justices of the peace, according to the requirements of our courts of record. He declared:

"Some scheme should be evolved whereby appeals from aldermen and justices of the peace should be examined and, where necessary, excluded from our higher courts. This would relieve congestion."

Mansfield Showdown Demanded

silence on McGovern, or definitely aligns himself with Armstrong.

Expectation of any comprehensive mutual campaign by Armstrong and Coyne has been abandoned by men close to Coyne who, until the past 24 hours, have been insistent that the two organization leaders would eventually head a "slate."

One such Coyne adherent today said that it was a good thing that all four candidates for Commissioner would go it alone. At the same time he observed there were growing evidences of an alliance between Armstrong and Mansfield.

ALLIANCE INDICATED

In the Eleventh Legislative District, with the exception of the Thirty-first Ward, there is definite evidence of a Mansfield-Armstrong hookup. In the Thirty-first Coyne will get at least an even break due to the influence of C. J. McBride, secretary of the Board for the Revision and Assessment of Taxes, who has a number of followers on the city payroll. Despite the fact that McBride holds his job through appointment from Armstrong, he has been suspected by the latter of being party to an effort to purchase from a thousand names on the assessment books from the Twenty-second Ward, where Coyne expects to get a big plurality, vote.

In the city wards where organization chairmen to date have declared they would support both Coyne and Armstrong the chief influence is a determination to pull through the Mayor's councilmanic ticket. This is understood to have been behind the declarations of Scott Morgan, of the Thirteenth, and Samuel Reno, Jr., of the Nineteenth, for Coyne and Armstrong. Former Councilman P. J. McArdle, Council candidate on the independent ticket, is strong in both wards, and it was felt Armstrong might assist him materially if there was a disposition on the part of the chairmen to support only Coyne.

COYNE SENTIMENT

In the Fourteenth Ward meeting Wednesday night the mention of Armstrong's name by his campaign manager, Congressman Harry A. Estep, brought only a scattering applause, the overwhelming sentiment being for Coyne alone.

In the North Boroughs, comprising the senatorial district of Herman Brandt, there is a noticeable fusion of Armstrong and Mansfield sentiment. Brandt followed the lead of Armstrong in the last Legislature. Some of his chief lieutenants now are for Mansfield.

Offsetting the declaration of Chairman Fred Dengler, of the Sixteenth Ward, for Coyne alone is a threat from the Seventeenth Armstrong territory that the voting there will cut Coyne heavily and possibly favor Mansfield. Armstrong men in the Seventeenth claim that police Wednesday night visited clubs whose proprietors are friendly to John P. Kearcher, Armstrong candidate for alderman, and ordered them closed. The report continued the proprietors were told they could resume business when they "got right" with P. F. Reilly, the Kline candidate.

PROBLEMS OF "HOOK-UP"

Reilly was a Kline entrant in the last senatorial primary against former Senator M. G. Leslie, eventually withdrawing on orders of the Mayor in favor of Armstrong's son, Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr. Subsequently the Mayor gave Reilly a well-paid city job, but he always felt resentful that he, rather than Armstrong, should have been the one forced to find a payroll spot for Reilly.

Any announcement of a combination between Armstrong and Mansfield will not be made before next Monday, according to reports today. There is some difference of opinion among those endeavoring to bring the two candidates together as to whether a statement, if made, should take the form of a joint appeal or whether the first move should come from Mansfield. Those favoring the latter course hold that Mansfield has more to gain than has Armstrong through an announcement, and that Armstrong could be effective should he no more than quietly pass the word to his followers. Mansfield, they argue, has no such obedient organization.

The Senator has unquestioned strength among such groups as the volunteer firemen of the county, who favor him not only for legislative activities in Harrisburg, but because of his opposition to the metropolitan charter, which was fought by the firemen.

McGOVERN PUSHES FIGHT

McGovern, disappointed in his expectation of a joint campaign with Mansfield, is pushing his campaign with increasing vigor. So far he has mentioned only Armstrong among his opponents. Whether he will embrace Mansfield in his denunciations should the Senator hook up with the chairman of the county board, is a problem of strategy which he and his campaign manager, former Senator Barr, are studying carefully.

At the meeting last night at the Keystone Club, Barr urged his ward chairmen to make a strenuous effort on the final two registration days to increase the roll of eligible voters.

Lustre Rugs 69.50

(Last Year's Prices $125 to $145)

Please do NOT confuse these lustrous rugs with cheap Velvet imitations miscalled "American-Orientals." If you must pay a large sum for a Velvet rug do so with full knowledge of what you are getting. The rugs in our 99.50 group are all jacquard-woven just as are the expensive hand-loomed rugs; patterns and colors are extraordinarily handsome; and the high luster and soft texture entitle them to vie with many of the genuine, hand-woven Orientals. We recommend these rugs for purchase at this special price. Held for fall delivery if desired.

JUDGES SCORED AS INACTIVE IN WAR ON CRIME

Bench Candidate Haggerty Declares Judiciary Over-Interested in Civil Cases

Attorney John L. Haggerty, broadcast last night over WCAE, in behalf of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Judge of Common Pleas Court. He said a serious factor in the selection of the judiciary is the crowded situation which [illegible] Haggerty [illegible] case.

"The law provides that our Common Pleas Court Judges must sit in the Criminal Court, but too often our sitting Judges in Allegheny County avoid this unpleasant and irksome duty. Many of our Judges, prior to their elevation to the bench, were known as civil lawyers, having little or no contact with criminal cases. Consequently they have no patience with criminal procedure and are reluctant to come in contact with it by sitting on criminal cases.

"If nominated and elected, I shall not shirk my duty of sitting in Criminal Court, and I shall do my utmost to speed the trial of civil as well as criminal cases.

DISTINCTIONS STRESSED

Judge H. [illegible] Reed, Republican candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, in a radio address last night over WCAE, stressed the importance of [illegible] the [illegible] Judges. He said:

"In fairness to themselves as being most interested, the voters should, as to the judicial office, insist on demonstrated professional skill and knowledge as the absolute essential.

"Mr. Nixon has the honesty, common sense and general ability necessary. In addition, he is indorsed by many organizations devoted to the welfare of the public."

Attorney James Francis O'Connor, candidate for Judge of County Court, appeared with candidates on the Independent Republican ticket at meetings last night in Davis School, Swissvale, and a Independent headquarters, 5961 Penn avenue. O'Connor will broadcast tonight over WWSW.

The Rev. M. J. Hechel, chairman of the Independent Progressive League, has endorsed O'Connor for the office, and has indorsed his candidacy for the judiciary.

William H. Coleman, of McKeesport, candidate for one of the seven Republican nominations for Judge of Common Pleas Court, speaking at the Turtle Creek High School last night, declared that appointment to the bench by a Governor should not give a candidate preference over other candidates of equal ability and experience in the law. Continuing, Mr. Coleman said:

"The issue of this judiciary campaign is the individual fitness of each candidate and the right of the voters to determine for themselves which of the 25 candidates is best fitted for the bench."

GANG CHALLENGE

Judge Ambrose B. Reid, one of the seven present Judges seeking to succeed themselves, issued a statement last night from campaign headquarters in which he declared that the need for fearless, honest and able judges during the present crucial period is greater than at any time in American history.

He said that the entire structure of the government is challenged by the growing power of the gangster and the racketeer and that the economic fabric is threatened by the business depression. Judge Reid stated:

"Repercussions from these two deplorable conditions will undoubtedly be heard in our courts and we must therefore have Judges upon the bench who are experienced in judicial procedure, well versed in the law and yet full of sympathy and who understand the needs of our common humanity."

LINDSAY LAUDED

Attorney Maurice Chaitkin, member of the lawyers' committee promoting the candidacy of Alexander P. Lindsay for Judge of Common Pleas Court, yesterday gave out the following statement:

"Believing that the citizens of Allegheny County will not fail in the important duty, more important at this time than ever before, of passing upon the qualifications of every candidate for the bench, Mr. Lindsay has consented to submit his candidacy, feeling that his years of experience at the bar would entitle him to consideration by the voters and believing that his long legal practice is a qualification beyond that of merely being appointed to the bench."

Waldschmidt Airs Faith in Voters

City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt, candidate for Judge of Common Pleas Court, in a statement from his headquarters in the Grant Building, declared today that the people here view the nomination of Judges as a serious duty and approach it unswayed by manufactured sentiment. He said:

"The people of Allegheny County have always assured themselves that their courts were presided over by the highest type of Judges."

Seek to Inform Relatives of Death

City detectives today were seeking relatives of Michael Connor, or O'Connor, 63, to inform them of his death in San Jose, Cal. The man, a former glassblower, lived in Pittsburgh years ago and has relatives in this city, the sleuths were informed.

Reich Lauds Judges But Denies Claim

Attorney Jacob H. Reich, speaking last night in McKeesport High School, declared the seven present Judges who are among his opponents for nomination as Judge of Common Pleas Court, [illegible]. He said:

"I have repeatedly stated that nothing should or can be said against the ability of the seven sitting Judges. They are fine, splendid men, but when they attempt to say that they are the only lawyers qualified to act as your Judges out of 1,800 members of the Allegheny County bar, they are, it seems to me, drawing conclusions not warranted by fact."

Judge Miller Asks Support on Record

Judge D. M. Miller, of County Court, seeking nomination for Judge of Common Pleas Court, has inaugurated a campaign that will take him into all parts of the county. Judge Miller said he depends on his record on the County Court bench for 20 years to gain him nomination for the higher court. He declared:

"I rest my case on my record and I have no intention of indulging in any criticism of my opponents for this nomination, including the seven sitting judges, for nearly all of whom I have a deep respect and liking."

Duff Denounces Court Procedure

Speaking at Union High School, Turtle Creek, last night, J. Boyd Duff, candidate for judge of Common Pleas Court, declared that justice in this county would not be speedy and convenient until the court discards its present procedure, regardless of how any judges may strive. He said:

"It takes three years to do what could be done in less than three months. Every other matter, however desirable, should wait until this fundamental defect is overcome. Let the candidates attack and master the cause of the congestion which makes vain the best intentioned labors of our judges."

SIXTH POWERS KILLING HINTED

CHICAGO, Sept. 4—(AP)—As friends and neighbors of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher in suburban Park Ridge were preparing for the funeral tomorrow of the widow and her three children slain in Clarksburg, W. Va., the Chicago Detective Bureau today was investigating the report of the disappearance of another Park Ridge woman.

She is Mrs. Anna Purcell, also known as Mrs. Anna Boehle, who, distrusting banks, was reputed to have carried a considerable sum of money sewed in the seams of her dresses. Two letters sent to Chief of Detectives John Norton by an unidentified writer said Mrs. Purcell might have been a victim of Harry F. Powers, who confessed slaying Mrs. Eicher, her children and another woman. The letters said Mrs. Purcell vanished from Park Ridge in 1929 after she had corresponded with an unidentified man with the object of matrimony.

The bodies of Mrs. Eicher and her three children were cremated yesterday and the ashes forwarded to Chicago. The funeral will be held tomorrow in the suburb's largest theater. The Rev. Walter D. Spangler, of the English Lutheran Church, will preside.

POWERS' PLACE 'CONEY' SHOW

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 4—(AP)—The Quiet Dell murder farm, turned into a Coney Island chamber of horrors with a high board fence around the slaughter house garage and drainage ditch where the bodies of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children and Mrs. Dorothy P. Lemke were found, was reported doing a land-office business again following the lifting of the sheriff's ban on an admission charge of 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

Yesterday, F. K. McClure, 310 South Chestnut street, appealed to the sheriff for guards to assist in handling the crowds. It is said that McClure is one of the lessees of the "amusement park" venture. His complaint was that people insisted on "rushing" the gate instead of paying the required admission price.

Sheriff William Grimm refused to supply guards.

A general "Coney Island" air about the place is increased with a hot dog refreshment stand along the quiet little mud lane leading into the "chamber of horrors" and a photographer's roadside stand where souvenir views are on sale.

Other Prisoners Shun 'Bluebeard'

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 4—Harry F. Powers, alleged American Bluebeard, occupies a cell alone in the county jail here and in solitude ponders upon his numerous conquests in love. Heeding objections of citizens and protests of other prisoners, Sheriff William Grimm today placed the pudgy love racketeer by himself.

HO, HUM! ANOTHER LAW

GOV. LONG SIGNS COTTON HOLIDAY LAW ABED

Day or night, Louisiana's governor and Senator-elect is on the job. Here he is, routed from sleep at 2 o'clock in the morning, enacting into law the measure by the terms of which no cotton will be planted in the state in 1932 if other Southern states concur.

JAILED IN ROW, BADLY HURT

Henry G. Buffone, 30, of 641 Seagert street, a police prisoner, was in Pittsburgh Hospital today, his skull believed fractured.

He was taken to the hospital from the East End Police Station almost 20 hours after he was arrested in his home following a fight with neighbors Wednesday night. With him police arrested Joseph Rinelli, 45, and his wife, Nancy, 37, of 643 Seagert street, following a fight in which the woman was alleged to have fired five shots. Rinelli, with jaw and skull injuries, was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Mrs. Rinelli and Buffone were held over at a hearing yesterday morning in the East End Police Court. They were charged with being suspicious persons.

Buffone did not complain about the injury until yesterday afternoon, when Lieut. George Pischke entered the cellroom to question another prisoner. He told the lieutenant of pains in the head. A depression in his skull was noted and his removal to the hospital was ordered immediately.

POWERS PROBE HUNTS WIDOW

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 4—Chief of Police Clarence Duckworth received a letter today which indicates that Harry F. Powers, alleged Bluebeard, may be in some way connected with the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Ella McDowell Rodgers, widow of a Louisville, Ky., newspaperman, in 1928.

The mention of "Charles Rodgers," of Pittsburgh, by the 45-year-old love racketeer revealed the famous case to Harvey S. Cameron, editor of the Webster Springs Republican, a former Louisville newspaperman. Cameron said the association of the names was significant. Mrs. Rodgers disappeared en route to the basement of her apartment to repair lights.

At the request of Cleveland police, local officers searched Powers' effects to see if he had corresponded with Mrs. Helen Lathrop, 34, a Cleveland widow, who is missing. No correspondence from Mrs. Latrop was found. A correspondent who had written to the woman had made statements very much similar to those Powers used in letters to other women.

MOB MENACES LAWYER AIDING 'BLUEBEARD'

Mrs. Dorothy P. Lemke, of Worcester, Mass.

SMILES AT THREATS

Smiling and debonair, O'Hara faced the irate group and, joshing them on the seriousness of their intent, he replied to their accusations that he had been sent to Clarksburg to fight Powers' case by a "powerful racket influence," saying:

"Absurd and ridiculous."

O'Hara paused on the jail steps. He sauntered over to the leader of the crowd and held out his hand, declaring:

"My friend, let's shake hands. We're liable to understand each other better after we get to know each other."

The old man backed away, waving his cane, and shouted:

"No, siree—I won't shake hands with you. I won't!"

THREATENS 'RIDE'

The crowd pressed close around the speaker. They nodded approval as he screamed his condemnation:

"We'll ride him out of town! This racketeer lawyer! We'll show him!"

SUSPECT CAPONE'S HAND

One remarked:

"They say Al Capone sent him down to help this killer of women and children."

Another spoke up:

"I hear the American Friendship Society at Detroit hired him to fight this case for the ..."

They nodded and agreed.

"We don't want outsiders in this case."

O'Hara later said:

"Regardless of the guilt or innocence of this man, accused of five murders, it behooves a good American citizen to keep an open mind until the weight of evidence proves him guilty beyond all question of a reasonable doubt.

"I do not think that the better element of this community or this state sanctions or approves such mob sentiment, but if they do, then it's high time, in the interests of American justice, no matter how heinous the crime, to give the prisoner a fair and impartial trial in some other state."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Flemming, of Worcester, Mass., reached Clarksburg today to arrange for the burial of Mrs. Lemke, a sister of Mrs. Flemming. The Flemmings came by motor and were expected to confer with Clarksburg police this afternoon. Plans were being made to have the coroner's jury which viewed the bodies of the Eicher family several days ago to view the body of Mrs. Lemke before it is removed.

ARMY CLAIM NOT UPHELD

Investigation of the love life of Powers was expected to occupy the attention of the authorities today. Despite Powers' repeated assertions that he was a veteran of the World War, serving with the "Rainbow Division," War Department records failed to substantiate his statements. Fingerprints have been sent to the National Identification Bureau in the hope of establishing his real identity.

The same air of mystery enshrouds the alleged matrimonial agency Romeo's early life. Questioned about his family and place of birth, Powers said his only near relative was a married sister. Pressed for more definite information, the prisoner declared:

"It would make no difference. My sister would not come to my aid. She knows nothing about me and I would not have her come to see me now. I hope she will not even hear about it."

START OF LOVE CAREER

First trace of Powers' adventures in wooing lonely women began, police say, in 1924, when he lived in Miller, S. D., under the name Joe Gildaw.

In January, 1931, he enrolled in the American Friendship Society in Detroit and was dropped at his own request in July. He is also known to have been in touch with a club in Quincy, Ill., which advertised as "Cupid's headquarters" with the slogan, "A good wife is a man's best asset." A letter from the club to Mrs. Lemke was found among the mail order lover's effects seized here.

Declaring that Powers was kept without sleep and "savagely" beaten, Attorney Law late yesterday issued an appeal to the public to withhold judgment until the accused man had been given a fair trial.

No 'Love', 'Mercy' In Bluebeard's Dictionary

(Copyright, 1931, by Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and International News Service.)

CLARKSBURG, Sept. 4—Harry F. Powers, West Virginia Bluebeard, made use of a small "handy-service" Webster's dictionary in his amorous mail order wooing. A small leatherette bound volume shows evidence of having been consulted frequently.

Perhaps it is coincidence, perhaps significant—but the abridged volume has omitted some of the words that play a prominent part in the love racketeer's life.

They are:

Kill—murder—hang—blood—grave—jail.

There is no "love" in Powers' dictionary. Neither is there "mercy."

PATROL CHECKS ON BUSES' SIZE

HARRISBURG, Sept. 4. (AP)—Benjamin G. Eyton, commissioner of motor vehicles, ordered the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol to check equipment here to determine whether they exceed the maximum specifications for length, width, height and weight.

Any vehicle exceeding the maximum specifications will be forbidden to proceed further on the Pennsylvania highways. Last week the patrol began checking the speed of buses and trucks and that began a check of the weights of trailers, Eyton said.

"It rests with offending companies to see that their buses meet the legal specifications. There was deliberate evasion of the law when license tags were secured for over width buses. As such motor vehicles are operating daily they can be classed as a motor vehicle engaged in habitual violation of the law and we have the legal right to remove the license plates."

Sues Stepmother As Love Pirate

GENEVA, Ill., Sept. 4. (AP)—Mrs. Minnie F. Chapman, 65, wealthy Aurora, Ill., widow, today was defendant in a $50,000 suit charging she stole the affections of her stepdaughter's husband.

The bill was filed on behalf of Mrs. Emma Frankie Chapman Abbott, of Massapequa, Long Island. It alleges that Mrs. Chapman showered gifts and money on George A. Abbott, 55, the husband. According to Mrs. Abbott, he came to Aurora from New York in 1921 to help settle the estate of her father, Matthew T. Chapman, founder of the American Well Works, and has since made his home with Chapman's widow.

YORK MEETING CALLED

MRS. J. BERND ROSE ... AT ALLEGHENY CLUB FOUNTAIN

'Whither Bound Womankind' Is Theme

In her call to the thirty-sixth annual meeting of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, the president, Mrs. John A. Frick, points out that the convention must of necessity take on a different aspect from the other three held during her administration. Life is too rushed, Mrs. Frick says, and the problems of the day too vital to ask hundreds of women to spend a week later on in reports of work accomplished. Reports are only useful in which they point to the future, and the future lies in the hands of a new administration.

It is with this in mind that "Whither Bound Womankind" has been made the general theme for the convention which will be held in York, October 12 to 16. Headquarters will be at the Yorktowne Hotel, while the sessions will be held in the First Presbyterian Church, just across the street from the Woman's Club which is the hostess organization.

Monday, the twelfth, will be filled with the usual business meetings and social groups preparatory to the formal opening on Tuesday morning. It is to be a "singing convention," with a convention choir as an innovation. Each department will present a speaker of prominence among these being Jane Deeter Rippin, former head of the Girl Scouts of America; Dr. John C. McGregor, Washington and Jefferson College; Dr. Katherine Jeanne Gallagher, Goucher College; Dorothy Straus, New York attorney; Grace Morrison Poole, first vice president of the General Federation; Dr. Bess Edwards, headmaster of Mercersburg Academy; Grace Abbot, chief of children's bureau, Federal Department of Labor; Dr. Brutus Boselli, of Vassar, who will give the closing address on the convention theme; Mrs. Joseph Linden Smith, chairman of Indian welfare in the General Federation, and Dr. Donald A. Cadzow, of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission.

Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, president of the Congress of Clubs, will be honored with a reception on Wednesday afternoon, September 16.

In her administration as president of the Ben Avon Heights Community Club this year, Mrs. T. L. Reger will be assisted by Mrs. Homer Neely as vice president; Mrs. W. A. Lowrie, recording secretary; Mrs. S. E. Bowman, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. C. Moore, treasurer. The program committee under Mrs. A. J. Spencer's chairmanship will have charge of the opening meeting which will be held Wednesday. Mrs. J. E. Manley is to give a talk on Switzerland.

Mrs. H. W. Bikle will be hostess for president's day, which comes October 14. The next event on the calendar will be an evening reception at the Shannopin Country Club for the families and friends of the members.

A Christmas story in December, talks by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Miss Mary Louise Succop, A. W. Beattie, superintendent of Ben Avon schools, Mrs. Alexander J. Barron and Mrs. Ruth Smith Gordon and a guest day—the closing event—will fill the remainder of the club afternoons.

Its annual corn roast will be held tomorrow evening in Riverview Park by the Pittsburgh League for the Hard of Hearing.

The Business Women's Club is in charge and Mrs. E. L. Gray has arranged a program of games and contests. The league's rooms, at 204 Fifth avenue, are now open from 9 until 5 each day excepting Sunday.

* * *

The Cordova Club has a home of its own and after October 1 will be established at Craig and Forbes streets, where two well-lighted rooms on the second floor have been taken over. Once they are in their own headquarters it is probable that the members will have exhibitions constantly.

* * *

The Kaerdinge Society will hold its meetings in the East Liberty Young Women's Christian Association during the construction of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church. The first meeting of the fall is scheduled for Thursday.

* * *

Girls from the Pittsburgh district who are attending Hood College will be guests of the Western Pennsylvania Hood College Club at tea in the Congress of Clubs on Saturday of next week.

CLUB NOTES

The first meeting of the Wilkinsburg Civic Club which will be held next Thursday will be a closed one, but on October 8 club members will invite their friends to meet the new president, Mrs. Horace W. Daugherty, at a reception and tea. A community meeting, a program on the American home, the annual card party, a Christmas program, a membership day on which the program will feature a style show, a citizenship day, talks by Mrs. Flora B. Sturgeon and Dr. John Franklin Troupe, annual reports and the social meeting are announced in the new year books as the season's events.

* * *

This year's officers of the McDonald Woman's Club are Mrs. T. J. Miller, president; Mrs. G. C. Kuehnert and Miss Alice Horry, vice presidents; Mrs. C. C. Osborn, recording secretary, and Miss M. Cecelia Davis, corresponding secretary and Miss Ida V. Steen, treasurer. The club will study Russia beginning its season on September 23 with a talk by the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, who has been in Russia.

The music, art and drama department will follow the same line of thought in its programs. The Club year ends May 25 and the department on May 2, the latter with a play.

CHARMING EVENING ENSEMBLE FAVORED FOR AUTUMN WEAR

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—Many vacationists this side of the world are finding it necessary to supplement their well-worn summer wardrobes with new afternoon and evening ensembles. Smart women are buying those new models that will not only serve them for the next few weeks, but will be suitable for wear at home during the fall and winter.

AN EVENING ensemble that is particularly popular for this purpose is offered from Philippe et Gaston. We have had it sketched for you today. The dress of black taffeta features a yoke at both back and front of transparent net covered entirely with stress embroidery. The sash, tied in front, is cut in one piece with the back of the bodice. An unpressed circular flounce is found at the center front of the skirt and a similar one is used at the back.

THE COAT, also of black taffeta, has a high rolling collar formed entirely of separate ermine skins placed closely side by side, but showing the separation between as the supple collar rolls. The same effect is found on the flowing sleeves. A high waistline is suggested by a stitched piecing encircling the coat.

SATIN, TOO, is enjoying quite a vogue in evening fashions right now and black lame organdie is very much worn. Black is a wise choice for the dinner or evening gown that is to be worn into the winter season.

THREE IN FAMILY CRASH VICTIMS

Three members of one family are in Suburban General Hospital Bellevue, the result of an automobile crash at Ohio River boulevard and Grant avenue, Bellevue this afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Morgan, 57 and 49 years respectively, and their daughter, Mary Louise, 10, were cut and bruised.

Mrs. Morgan suffered several fractured ribs, internal injuries and shock, and her daughter was bruised and lacerated. Both are in a serious condition. Mr. Morgan's legs were injured.

J. A. Donaldson, 708 Brighton road, Ben Avon, whom police say was the driver of the car that crashed into the Morgan machine, was arrested, charged with reckless driving. He was slightly injured. According to a police report, the Morgan car was making a left turn from the boulevard when it was struck by Donaldson's machine going in the opposite direction.

PARADE BOOSTS ARMSTRONG

An automobile parade, sponsored by the Ross Township Republican Club in behalf of the candidacy of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, was held last night in the North Boroughs.

The caravan, consisting of about 250 machines, paraded through Ross Township, Bellevue, Avalon and Ben Avon to Emsworth and returned through the North Side and West View to Turner's Grove, where the candidates addressed the gathering.

Among the speakers were State Senator William D. Mansfield and Commissioner Armstrong. State Senator H. P. Brandt, Robert G. Woodside, County Controller J. Denny O'Neil, candidate for County Treasurer, District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Judges D. M. Miller, S. J. Spee, John P. Egan and William H. McNaugher and a number of local candidates.

Oliver Wright, Treasurer of Ross Township, presided.

HAMILTON TAX TOUR PLANNED

C. C. Hamilton, candidate for County Commissioner on the Taxpayers' ticket, has stated that he and his running mates will tour the county next week for the purpose of presenting the "serious" tax situation in Allegheny County.

He declared that his colleagues have extended an invitation to every candidate for every office to join the tour and advocate his own candidacy.

The caravan will start at 10 a. m. each day from Duquesne way and Third street. The itinerary for Monday follows: East Liberty to Oakmont to Hulton to New Kensington, crossing the bridge to Tarentum, returning by way of Millvale, Etna, Glenshaw, Allison Park, Bakerstown and Pittsburgh by way of Babcock boulevard.

$100,000 ASKED BY MRS. DUSEK

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 4 — (AP) — Suit for $100,000 damages was filed here today by Mrs. Edith Dusek of Shaker Heights, exclusive suburb, against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Lavinia Dusek, charging alienation of affections.

The plaintiff, daughter of Charles C. Hill, general superintendent of the American Steel and Wire Company, was married to Earl Dusek in Pittsburgh March 16, 1928. They have two children.

Mrs. Dusek asserts that soon after their marriage, her husband's mother started a "wicked and unlawful scheme" to separate them, and that as a result Dusek left her August 6.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4 — (AP) — Capt. Samuel J. Nieburg, of the Philadelphia Police Department, was arrested on a capias and made defendant in a $5,000 suit brought by a young woman who charged false arrest. The woman, Sarah Dingwall, 23, said Capt. Nieburg arrested her in a raid on a home where she was working after he had found no liquor. He later visited her home and badly damaged its furnishings searching for liquor, she charged.

RESINOL CLEARS PIMPLY SKIN AT SMALL COST

My friends recommended Resinol Soap and Ointment so I purchased some and was surprised after using one cake of soap and one jar of ointment to find it had cleared my skin. All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

MISS G IS a pretty stenographer with a heart of gold. She hates to witness misery and her nerves grow very jumpy when she so much as reads about misfortune of any kind. She doesn't earn much coin and she hasn't any too much luxury on her own account, but that doesn't prevent her from feeling terribly sorry for those who have even less. She would like to give away millions to the poor, even as you and I. Yes, sir. Miss G is a perfect example of the old German expression—"all beggars have kind hearts."

Well, into Miss G's office one morning came a poor, old man. This man had depression written all over him. His suit was thin and his shoes looked as though he had gone along kicking barbed wire fences. He looked as though his last meal had arrived with the armistice and he spoke in such hopeless tones that he might have been related to Walter Hampden.

"May I see your boss, miss?" he asked. "I won't keep him long. Perhaps if you tell him that one of life's misfits wants just a moment of his time, he will agree to see me. I would be so grateful."

Miss G was already on the verge of tears. Her lips quivered as she told the unfortunate man that her boss was busy. Perhaps, if he waited a few minutes, the boss would grant him an audience. The walking depression managed a sad smile.

"Indeed, I'll wait," he murmured. "It's kind of you to ask. In most places they give me no encouragement whatsoever."

Some 10 minutes later the derelict was taken in to see the boss. Fifteen minutes more and he was out again. But this time there was a smile on his kisser. And Miss G was happy. She rushed into her boss's office and asked him what had happened.

"The same old story," he replied, "but I feel sorry for the old bird. He's down and out, but he seems to be a little too proud to beg. Comes from Chicago and lost his wife about a year ago. Now he's just wandering around and sleeping in doorways.

"I'm going to give him the best job I can offer. He'll sell subscriptions to our magazine. I'll furnish him with leads and let him keep half of what he takes in. He starts tomorrow. Nothing new about him. Just too bad."

It's a good thing the boss didn't go any further. The tears were already beginning to flow down Miss G's cheeks.

The derelict found the going pretty tough. He had a room in the Mills Hotel and he tramped the streets all day long. Some times he earned a dollar, sometimes nothing. Times were hard and people wanted magazines subscriptions like they wanted a good dose of pleurisy.

Every time that the old boy passed her desk, Miss G's heart sank to her I. Miller shoes. He was growing thinner and thinner; his suit had so many patches it was beginning to resemble a crazy quilt. The big-hearted gal wanted to do so much, but had nothing to do it with. She would have appealed to the boss, but she knew that he, himself, was liable to be the next one to engage a room at the Mills Hotel.

So finally, in desperation, Miss G did something she wouldn't have done for herself or her own brother. She called her ex-employer, a kindly gentleman, whose employ she had left some years before, but who had made her promise that she would call upon him if she ever needed anything. And she told him the story.

"He's a wonderful old man," she wound up tearfully, "and my heart bleeds for him. Maybe there's something you can do. I'm calling on you as you requested. Not for myself, but for an unfortunate man who really deserves a break. Will you see him?"

The former employer said he would. And Miss G was very, very happy. You see what a sweet girl she was?

A few days later, the derelict came into see the stenographer who was his best friend. Yes, he had been down to see the other man and he couldn't say enough about him. Did Miss G know what he had done? Why, he had outchased a complete outfit for him that amounted to more than $100. More than that, he had given him a salesman's job at $25 a week and commission. The derelict was back on his feet once again!

The girl was thrilled.

"It's all so wonderful," she breathed. "It makes me so very happy just to think that I could give another human being a helping hand. I do hope you'll make good from now on."

The man placed a bony hand on hers.

"If there was anything in this world that I could do for you," he murmured, "I would do it gladly. Never have I met anyone who was so sweet or who was so understanding.

"Everything I have—everything I ever will have, I owe to you. Perhaps some day I will be able to repay you in some small way. Meanwhile, all I can do is to thank you."

A month went by and Miss G. heard no word from the nice old man. She thought that rather strange. So, while unoccupied one afternoon, she phoned her ex-employer and asked how her man was doing.

"I haven't heard from him in a month," she explained, "and I just wondered if he . . ."

The other voice interrupted her.

"You don't have to wonder any longer," it growled. "That bum forged my name to a $500 check the third day he was here and hasn't been seen since. After this, keep your bums from me."

Miss G still has a heart of gold. But she only reads about sad cases now. When a beggar comes into her office she throws telephone books at him.

"DEAR SIR," writes David Zacharias of 638 E. 138th street, New York, "I thought I'd write you a few lines to let you know that I have been a taxi driver for 10 years and that I would like to have you answer a question for me.

"What I would like to find out is about all these big taxi deals that I read in the newspapers. I see that a driver finds $10,000,000 in his cab, dashes to the nearest police station and gives it up. A few days later, I read where he is handed $25,000 reward. Another taxi hero discovers $81,679,784,390 in jewels and returns them for a $45,689,290 reward.

"I would like to learn if all these things are pipe dreams or if they are written by reporters who had one shot too much. As I told you before, I have been in this graft for 10 years—and the best I ever found in my cab was a baby's bottle, a holey umbrella and a pair of socks that somebody changed on the fly.

"If you know some millionaire who would like to ride in my cab and leave a couple of million dollars, tell him to look me up before going elsewhere. I'm honest and trustworthy, but I simply never had the right opportunity."

DAMAGE SUITS ASK $100,000

Mrs. Sarah J. O'Brien, of 846 Chislett street, asked $25,000 damages for the death of her son Charles, 16, by an automobile in a suit against Joseph Littman, of 24 Chislett street, filed in Common Pleas Court. Littman was driving his automobile in Drake way, in the rear of the O'Brien home, when he struck the youth, who died shortly afterwards in Presbyterian Hospital, the suit charged.

Seeks $25,000 damages for injuries alleged received when she was being removed from an ambulance into the Homestead Hospital, Hanna Collins, of Homestead, filed suit against Charles W. Zorn and Clement M. Limbacher, Braddock undertakers, in Common Pleas Court. Her counsel charges removal from the ambulance of defendants' stokes by them from her home to the hospital caused her foot to be caught in the ambulance door, dislocating a joint and necessitating the removal of a bone and which will cripple her for life, the suit charged.

The Youghiogheny Country Club was named defendant in a suit filed by a caddy, William Matthews, 15, through his mother, Mrs. Margaret Matthews, of 1008 Soles street, McKeesport, in Common Pleas Court. The suit claimed $50,000 damages for injuries to the boy when an automobile ran over his legs on a private driveway of the club grounds June 19, 1930, when he was employed by the club as a caddy, according to the suit.

$1,600 Monthly for Jackie Cooper's Upkeep Asked

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Permission to spend $1,600 monthly for the support of Jackie Cooper, juvenile film star, was sought from the courts by Mrs. Maud Leonard Cooper, the boy's mother. She filed a petition for appointment as guardian and said $1,600 monthly was required to support her son in the manner in which juvenile actors are accustomed.

Assets of the boy, she said, consist of a $50,000 endowment insurance policy, $8,000 in cash and a motion picture contract providing for $1,300 weekly salary for the first year and as much as $4,000 weekly the third year.

Mrs. Cooper said she had been divorced from the boy's father, John G. Cooper.

TRUCK FREIGHT DISPUTE AIRED

Investigators for the West Penn Railways Company trailed the trucks of S. A. Bingaman, Latrobe, to ascertain from whom he was receiving freight for delivery to points between Pittsburgh, Greensburg and Latrobe in competition with the railways, and then filed complaint, it was testified before the Public Service Commission.

The complaint was heard yesterday before Examiner W. F. Best, at which time Bingaman produced contracts made with Pittsburgh shippers for the delivery of express matter, a private arrangement, Bingaman asserted. Under this plan, he said, he was not forced to comply with Public Service Commission regulations. His counsel, Carroll Carothers, of Greensburg, says the United States Supreme Court has decided that in such cases the Public Service Commission has no jurisdiction.

Bingaman applied for and was refused a certificate to operate vehicles as a common carrier for the transportation of freight. He then made contracts at the solicitation of shippers, he said, to enable him to carry on his business.

The patriotic three-color job, first of its kind on the streets of Washington, came in under a new traffic act. The plate has a white background. The border and "1932" are in blue. The number itself and the congressional designation are in red.

In the radio waves about you there are "images." They are the form and outline of radio waves without the volume. These "images" extend out from and around radio waves and often overlap other waves. And when one overlaps the wave your super heterodyne is tuned in on, your entertainment changes to a series of shrieks and howls. It is known as "station whistle," the cause of ruining many an hour that could have been pleasant.

Now the image suppressor, built into the super heterodyne circuit of the 1932 Silvertone, completely banishes it. It is an engineering achievement that gives a new fullness to the enjoyment of super heterodyne reception. And it makes annoying "whistles" almost unheard of, because nine out of ten of them are caused by these "images" which Silvertone suppresses.

The image suppressor is but one of the engineering improvements brought to you by the new Silvertones. They provide a new richness and trueness of tone by combining pentode tubes with the super heterodyne circuit—a new clarity by "multi-mu"—a new selectivity utterly free of fuzziness.

In short, the 1932 Silvertones bring you a new completeness of radio enjoyment. And, housed in handsomely designed and superbly finished cabinets, they bring a new correctness for the furnishings of your home.

Step into any Sears-Roebuck store today and try the Silvertone itself. Note its clarity and tone superiority, its charming furnishing effect—and, above all, note its prices. Only because Silvertone comes directly from the factory to you through our own system of retail stores and mail order houses are you able to get so much radio value at such prices.

PINCHOT AGAIN URGED TO CALL COAL CONFERENCE

Constable's Prisoner Leaps From Bridge

TRAIN MISSES FUGITIVE BY FEW FEET

Man Pushed From Running Board of Auto When He Demands Ride; Recaptured

A prisoner who leaped from an automobile and then from the Island Avenue Bridge to escape a constable taking him from the county jail to Emsworth to answer to charges of violating the new firearms law, was back in jail today after a few hours' freedom.

He is Wayne Thomas, 25, of 246 Steuben street, Crafton, arrested by Patrolman Arthur Hallewell, of Avalon, Tuesday after, the patrolman said, he threatened an Avalon family with a pistol.

As the machine bearing the prisoner neared the California avenue approach to the Island Avenue Bridge Thomas, police said, jumped out, leaped onto the running board of another automobile, and ordered the driver to get him out of the neighborhood. Instead the driver pushed him off and sped away.

Reaching the bridge, the fleeing man jumped to the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad below and narrowly escaped being hit by a train. His fall was broken by telegraph wires. He was arrested soon after in Emsworth by Chief of Police Lewis Luckan and Patrolmen Hallewell and James Parker, of Avalon.

He will be given a hearing tonight before Justice of the Peace Arthur Gavin, of Emsworth.

CHILD, 3, FINDS POLICE HAVEN

Parents of Raymond Kowalecki, 3, of 3045 Brereton avenue, who missed him at midnight, found him early today sleeping comfortably in the home of Police Lieut. John J. Held at 237 Forty-third street.

The boy was found wandering in the vicinity of Penn avenue and Forty-fifth street by a policeman, who took him to the Forty-third Street Station. He was too sleepy and too tired to discuss current events with the police, who couldn't even get him to tell them his name. So the Lieutenant took him home for the night.

After searching through the neighborhood for hours the parents notified police at midnight, and Raymond, who went to bed on Forty-third street, got up this morning on Brereton avenue.

Our Diplomats Become Gypsy Fortune Tellers

-By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER-

Well, we're better off than England. Over there they tax everything with ears or handles.

An Englishman pays 4s 6d on every pound. That means the government grabs over 20 per cent of all the lather in the barber shop.

That doesn't stop Secretary Stimson from being optimistic over the European autopsy. He just got back from the seven-candle power conference and reports progress.

All the war debts will be paid by 1960. Then we will face the future with renewed confidence, thick eye glasses, and with the coroner's permission we will start life all over again.

Our diplomats have traveled so much that they've turned Gypsy fortune tellers and are hypothecating the future.

It's kind of tough on the present crop of taxpayers. But, like the Scotchman who borrowed a quart of liquor on his wedding day, we are thinking of future generations.

That last Morgan loan makes us all right again over there. Uncle Sam has 'em puzzled because he can play Shylock and Santa Claus with the same set of whiskers.

TEACHERS SEE HAMILTON FILM

All of the teachers attending the county institute at Memorial Hall have been invited by the Sun-Telegraph and Warner Brothers Theaters to attend a preview of "Alexander Hamilton" at the Davis Theater this afternoon. George Arliss, famous character actor, is cast for the role of Hamilton.

The teachers will see the picture far in advance of public release, as it does not open until midnight, September 13, at the Warner Theater on Fifth avenue. More than 1,800 tickets were distributed at Memorial Hall yesterday and this morning.

The picture, a comedy drama of post-revolutionary days, has a historical flavor and is a story which should give those who see it a new, dramatic insight into that phase of American history. Arliss is said to have handled the characterization of the early American patriot with humor and understanding.

FARMERS ASKED TO DONATE PRODUCE

Surplus Committee Plans To Serve 5,000 Needy Families 5 Cans Weekly

An appeal was being made today to the wealthy farmers of the Pittsburgh district, especially those of the Sewickley Valley, to donate all their produce to the cause of the Surplus for the Needy Committee here.

It was pointed out by leaders of the committee this would serve a two-fold purpose. It would allow a greater market for the products of the less wealthy farmers of the district and would serve to swell the contributions of fruit and vegetables which will be used to aid the needy of the Pittsburgh district.

PLANS RUSHED

The Surplus for the Needy Committee, under the leadership of Attorney Harry I. Miller and the Rev. Alexander Gibson, will supervise the preservation of excess farm products and distribute these products to the needy of the district.

With the donation of a complete canning factory, plans were being pushed today by members of the committee to begin operation of the project Monday morning. The cannery is the former Lee, Chattaway, Jacobs plant at 1455 Spring Garden avenue, North Side. All the equipment in it has been donated by Jacob Horne, Samuel Levine and Max Hollander, who recently purchased it from a receiver. Irwin Falck, of the Falck Soap Company, owner of the building, has donated it for the season.

EXPERTS IN CHARGE

The committee will have the services of expert canners, donated by leading canning companies in the district.

The organization has made plans to furnish more than 5,000 needy families in the Pittsburgh district with five cans of vegetables each week over a period of 32 weeks. The preservation of the excess farm products is being done in compliance with the appeal by the President's Emergency Committee for Employment.

The Pittsburgh Chapter, American Red Cross, will have charge of the school kitchens of the district and will oversee the work of canning and preserving, it was announced.

An appeal for trucks has been issued by the committee. They will be used for the collection and distribution of the products to the needy of Pittsburgh.

Miner Drops Search For His Lost $14,500

LAWRENCE COVI — DETECTIVE WILLIAM SULLIVAN

Declares He Cannot Return to City to Aid Detectives

Lawrence Covi, coal miner, 60, of Herminie, must smoke a well known brand of cigarets which deals with nonchalance and such. He decided to drop a search for $14,500, which he told city detectives he had lost.

Yesterday he told Detectives William Sullivan and Charles Weisenhofer he had lost the packet containing 290 $50 bills somewhere between a Pittsburgh bank and Herminie.

With the sleuths, he retraced his steps and then went back home. Detectives went part way with him.

Sullivan asked him to come back to the City Detective Bureau today and resume the search. The miner replied according to Sullivan:

"Can't come back; let's drop it."

Sullivan said there was nothing to do but drop the search. He said Covi told him he had withdrawn the money to use $2,000 to go to Europe and divide the remainder between his wife and five children, Sullivan said.

PROTEST VOTES AT LEECH FARM

Steps have been taken to challenge the registration and voting of patients of the Leech Farm Tuberculosis Hospital, Hymen Schlesinger, counsel for Stanley M. Knapp, announced today.

Knapp had filed a bill in equity against Mayor Charles H. Kline, Health Director C. B. Mails and Superintendent Joseph Shilen, of the hospital, to prevent the inmates from registering and voting. The City Solicitor filed a petition to set aside the service on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction and improper parties.

The court granted the petition and dismissed Knapp's bill, but did not decide any of the questions raised in the suit, Schlesinger said.

LEAGUE PUSHES PUBLIC WORKS AS JOB AID

Borough, Township and City Organization Seeks Big Improvement Programs

Details of a plan sponsored by the League of Boroughs, Townships and Third Class Cities, working in conjunction with the Welfare Fund and the Emergency Relief Fund, were announced by Joseph T. Miller, president of the league, following a conference late yesterday. The plan is designed to combat unemployment in the county during the winter, and is an enlargement of the Emergency Fund plan operated in Pittsburgh last winter.

The meeting was presided over by Chairman Samuel A. Taylor. E. C. Stone, representing the Emergency Fund Association and Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the Welfare Fund, explained the part their respective associations will have in unemployment relief this winter.

The plan of the league, Miller said, is to have each borough and township to increase its bonded indebtedness to finance needed public improvements not on the municipalities' regular schedules. Leading engineers would supervise the work, donating their services.

A departure from the ordinary plan of unemployment relief will be the taking in of office workers now unemployed by furnishing them work along their respective lines, Miller said.

"The success of the plan depends on the support given it by the residents of the boroughs, townships and third class cities of the county. If supported in this way the communities will profit by receiving $2 worth of work for $1 in money spent, and their unemployed will have food, clothing and shelter next winter."

CHARLEROI GIRL ASKS BALM

Alleging breach of promise to marry her, Jane Furie, Charleroi nurse, asked $25,000 damage from Sherman T. Frantz, widower, an American Bridge Company superintendent, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court. A capias in $800 bail was issued for Frantz by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen.

Miss Furie averred she met Frantz in June, 1930, when she was nursing in a home in Spears, near Charleroi, and he was in charge of a bridge construction project near there. He proposed marriage August 9, 1930, while they were on an automobile trip to Cumberland, Md., and on May 27 last he promised to marry her and take her with him on a three months' vacation trip, she averred.

He made love to her at different times and took her to amusements she allered. She observed a cooling of his affections, and June 13, when he said he would not marry her, she charged.

OPERATOR SEES WAY CLEAR FOR RELIEF PARLEY

Stoneroad Hopes to Have Producers and Governors Study Depressed Industry

Efforts of coal operators and miners to hold a joint conference in Washington having failed, J. T. M. Stoneroad, president of the Carnegie Coal Company, today again urged Gov. Pinchot to invite the Governors of Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky to meet him and discuss overproduction and unemployment in the coal industry.

Stoneroad said Gov. Pinchot has not replied to his first request for such a conference. He feels that if nothing more resulted than a demonstration of what could be done with the industry, it would be worth while.

WAY CLEAR FOR PARLEY

Stoneroad declared:

"The way seems clear for the governors of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky to consider remedial measures for the industry. The governor of Ohio has indicated his willingness to attend such a conference. I understand the governor of Kentucky is not averse to a meeting.

Stoneroad pointed out that Kentucky is highly competitive with Southern West Virginia. He said:

"The Governor of West Virginia seems to think his state has now no legal authority to deal with the coal problem in the manner heretofore suggested: use of the police powers to curtail coal production as it is used in Oklahoma and Texas to curb oil waste.

"When the prosperity of the coal industry means as much, if not more to West Virginia than to any other coal producing states, it is fair to assume that he did not intend an unwillingness to seek by legislative enactment the necessary authority with which to control an industry so vital to the state."

REMEDY SOUGHT

Stoneroad said it is the business of all interests in the industry to seek a remedy, since the condition of the industry for many years has been known to all. He continued:

"Who can possibly be more interested in the finding of this remedy than the governors of these states with the aid, advice and assistance of the principal operators of these states.

"If nothing further resulted from such a conference than a demonstration of what could be done with the industry, it would be worth while."

LEADING OPERATORS

It was suggested that some of the leading operators of the states named be called to such a conference. Some of the leading companies are the Consolidated Coal Company and the Continental Coal Company, of Northern West Virginia; Allen Creek Coal Company, of Southern West Virginia; M. A. Hanna Coal Company, of Cleveland, and the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, of Pittsburgh. Some operators believe that if representatives of these and other coal companies accepted an invitation to attend such a conference much good could be accomplished.

Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers of America, has expressed himself as favoring federal action. P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, also holds the same views, rather minimizing the importance of conferences as suggested.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 4.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

We got one thing to be thankful for anyhow—the country is not in as bad shape as the rumors have it. If ever a land was rumored to death it's us. There is not a bank in America that is not closed a thousand times a day by whispers. In fact there is no unemployed; we got 120,000,000 people working overtime just repeating rumors. If we did pass out as a great nation our epitaph should read: "America died from fright."

SUIT DECLARES RUSSIAN GROUP COMMUNISTIC

Former Member Ascribes Expulsion to Opposition To Theories Held by 'Reds'

Alexander N. Kurilovich, of 214 Dunseith street, filed a suit for $100,000 damages in Federal Court against the Russian Mutual Aid Society of America, from which organization he said he was expelled because he opposed Communism.

He charges the society, through its executive committee, was caused to believe he had been guilty of misappropriating and squandering funds of the society, of being a police informer, and being an agent of the White Guard.

Kurilovich sets forth in his statement of claim he was a charter member of the society, organized as the National Mutual Aid Society of St. Alexander Nevsky. It later changed its name.

He said the society operated on principles of freedom from politics until in April, 1928, a convention of the society took action which virtually placed it under Communistic control. He declared it is now a tool of the Communist party and has for its aim the establishment of Communistic government in the United States.

The plaintiff is a subject of Poland. He is represented by Attorney Lawrence B. Cook.

Clothing valued at $400 was stolen from the apartment of W. H. Brice, 44 Academy avenue, Mt. Lebanon, by the same thieves, police believe. The door was also unlocked with a key.

BARR ASSAILS TAX BOARD

Former Senator Cadwallader M. Barr, campaign manager for the ticket headed by McGovern, said he was amazed at the wanton disregard of the rights of voters as practiced by the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes. He said:

"I was amazed and disgusted to learn that last Wednesday, the last assessment day, upwards of 1,000 voters were refused the right to be assessed.

"The board, which is composed of lieutenants of County Commissioner Armstrong, literally slammed the doors in the faces of citizens and taxpayers when the usual closing hour of 4 o'clock came. This, despite the fact that the assessment books had been closed for two days to these voters while the board awaited a court decision on its illegal methods in failing to certify assessments to the County Treasurer. The court held that the arbitrary closing of the books was unnecessary and unfair to voters."

COYNE RELIEF PLAN LAUDED

At a mass meeting in Perry High School last night, President John S. Herron of City Council, approved the relief plan of State Senator James J. Coyne, candidate for County Commissioner.

Coyne has proposed providing work during the winter by having county employes cast concrete slabs in cheaply constructed buildings on the county roads. The slabs would be placed as sidewalks along county roads the following spring. Herron declared:

"Senator Coyne has evolved and has committed himself irrevocably to a program for relief of the unemployed which, I am sure, will appeal to all thinking people.

"By providing employment, men are able to retain their self-respect. They are working and receive compensation for their labor. You all understand that every self-respecting man hesitates to accept charity. We do not want the 'dole.' We want to provide work and we want to make funds available for payment of honest wages."

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Week End

Crush this to you heart and force the last
Ecstatic drop of joy from its short span;
Today's a silver curtain on the past,
Tomorrow flies with boredom in its van . . .

Take my kiss and wear it on your mouth,
Frame my ardent glance within your mind;
The one a spring against the coming drouth,
The other light and warmth with this behind.

The memories you fashion now may well
Serve you when the days grow dull and bleak.
So gather up these sweets that you may dwell
Secure against the blankness of next week.

For Monday you type bills for cloaks and suits,
While I sell Broadway cowboys marked down boots!

CURTIS DELAYS DECISION

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—(AP)—The group of aspiring Republican candidates for Vice President is going to have to wait some time to learn the decision of Charles Curtis whether he will run for renomination or for his old seat from Kansas in the Senate next year.

Research Workers Show the Advantages of Sweets

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Formerly Health Commissioner, New York City.
United States Senator from New York.

Modern parents recognize the worth of sweets as an aid to digestion and generally they are no longer denied children.

There is no doubt the children of this generation are greatly benefited by the remarkable advances in science. This statement is true both as regards their bodies and their minds.

Sweets, particularly candy and desserts, were at one time denied the child of "advanced parents." A different judgment is passed on them today. Recent investigation by competent scientists make it clear that the taste of food is almost as important as the food itself.

It has been shown that indulgence of the sweet tooth may actually assure better digestion. In order that food be properly digested it must appeal to the taste.

Such information is good news to the kiddies. They like sweets and cry for them. It is a relief to know that instead of impairing the appetite their use in moderation may increase it.

Careful research done at Columbia University on college students has shown that salty and bitter foods do not increase the flow of saliva and do not aid in the process of digestion. In addition to stimulating proper digestion, sweets appear to stimulate appetite.

It has been shown by these research workers that a sweet substance produces remarkable stimulation of the flow of the stomach juices. Of all the sweets used, a chocolate bar was found to be the most beneficial in this respect.

The work done at this university further confirms the belief that there are four basic tastes. These are sweet, salt, acid and bitter. Complex tastes are built up from these four common ones.

If your child enjoys sweet foods do not deprive him of his enjoyment, provided he receives the proper amount of nourishment.

Pleasure in eating assures a contented child. Combined with an abundance of fresh fruits, vegetables and milk, with plenty and healthy, of fresh air and sunshine, the [illegible] child is almost certain to be happy.

Remove from fire. Add salt, coconut and flavoring. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet. Bake in slow oven (350 degree F.) 25 minutes or until slightly browned. Garnish with bits of jelly in assorted colorings, grape currant, mint, orange, etc. Makes 30 small puffs.

Place jelly in bowl and set over hot water. Add egg white and salt and beat with rotary egg beater until jelly is free from lumps. Remove from fire and continue beating until mixture is stiff enough to stand in peaks. Spread on cakes, garnish with bits of clear jelly and serve at once.

* * *

MINTED PINEAPPLE SUPREME—Soften 1½ tablespoons of gelatin in ½ cup of cold water and add ½ cup of sugar and 1 cup of pineapple juice (canned), bring to the boiling point, remove from the fire and cool slightly. Woman Knows When She's Won Her Man and Need Fear No Rivals—Fay King

By FAY KING

Every woman knows when she has won her man and need fear no rivals. She knows perfectly well when she can be "heartless and cruel" without losing him.

She also knows perfectly well when she has lost her hold on him. When all her little fascinations have lost their lure.

Now the smart thing to do when you see that your boy friend is drifting is to call it quits first.

No amount of pleading or pursuing will hold him.

But all men are infinitely vain concerning their conquests. That he no longer interests YOU will make more of an impression on him than any other argument you can use in your favor. If it doesn't hold him it at least does not humiliate you.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Each Diabetic Requires Own Diet

Much has been written about the treatment of diabetes. Much remains to be learned about the prevention of this disease.

Dr. Copeland

There is a fundamental difference between the diabetic and the healthy individual. It lies in the ability of the body to make proper use of the carbohydrate foods, the starches and sugar.

When the carbohydrates are not digested normally, sugar is likely to be found in the urine. In very mild cases of diabetes it may be found in the blood if not in the urine.

The diabetic should be placed on a diet his system can handle. This is determined by accurate measuring of the food in terms of calories. Care is taken to limit carbohydrates to the very minimum.

In many cases of diabetes such regulation is sufficient. Then it is not necessary to take insulin, the recognized remedy for the control of this disease. But without insulin it is essential to refrain from the offending food substances.

The diet of the diabetic need not differ from the diet of the normal individual if regular doses of insulin are taken. Under former methods of treatment it was believed dangerous to permit generous eating of diets containing carbohydrates.

Within recent years there has been a growing tendency to permit the diabetic a more liberal diet. By accurate study of the urine and blood following various diets the choice of foods can be determined.

No two individuals suffering from diabetes respond exactly the same. It is important that the diet be individually calculated. Most rules applicable to one person can hardly be applied to another.

If you have diabetes, it is necessary to be under the care of a physician. In this matter, particularly, it would be influences by what someone other than a doctor may advise you. The disease has been profoundly studied, and only your physician is in a position to give you dependable information.

Household Hints

If the windows of the inclosed porch are very dirty and perhaps splashed with mud rub them off first with a dampened newspaper and then clean as usual. You will find it easier on both the windows and you.

If you have no convenient bed for the baby visitor, put a flat pillow in your deepest bureau drawer and let the little one sleep on this improvised bed. It may be placed on two chairs right by mother's bed if desired.

Try putting a half cupful of vinegar in the rising water when next you wash your hair. It will soften it and give it a pretty sheen.

Lillian Warns of Possible Rampage by Mother Graham

Didn't look as if the world were coming to an end. Lillian considered the crossly when the flushed little mother that Mother Graham was getting ready to demonstrate one of her ridiculous fantasms because of naming the new baby. You surely have had enough experience with that mother-in-law of yours so that you can contemplate her moods and tenses calmly even in the midst of a cyclone.

I laughed light with a carefully forced effect. What she had just come with not revolt to me. Ever since my home coming I had sensed the seething resentment of Dickey's mother whenever the question of naming the baby came up, which it did with increasing frequency as the days went by with no decision as to the name.

I've never had to contemplate anything like this before," I said. "She's handsome and temperamental.

I [illegible] as relieved. I [illegible] proved wife and [illegible] that she [illegible] wanted me the little [illegible] of myself in the [illegible] which I was about [illegible] Say some more of em.

But she's never pet[illegible] ner mean." I went on imperturbably.

"You're falling off," Lillian said severely. "Those first two had four syllables apiece—count 'em—and those last two only two and one respectively. I'm ashamed of you."

"I'm ashamed of myself," I said with sudden spirit. "That's my baby and I ought to name her as I please. And you know very well what I want to call her—Lillian, after you."

She dropped her hands to her sides and taking her skirt between them curtseyed as if between billows of fabric.

"Your intentions are good," she said drily, "but that lets you out. What complex have you that you should inflict upon a helpless infant a name like mine? She'll go through life as 'Lil' than whatever can be whatter or more deadly."

I laughed, but I persisted.

"But I want it so much," I said.

Suddenly sobered she laid her hand upon my shoulder.

"I know you do dear girl and you don't know what it means to me to have you want it. But it is impossible. No, don't trouble. Listen to me."

There was something so insistent in her tone that I put aside the disappointment I felt at her assertion and sat quietly waiting for what she had to say.

"In the first place," she said, "the only reason you want to name your daughter Lillian is because you love me. You don't really think it the best name possible. In fact I believe if you didn't know me you could think of a dozen or so you'd choose in preference to it. Don't trouble to rise up on your hind legs and deny it, for I know it's so, and so do you. I'm going to give you a chance to save face however, a la our Chinese friends, for I'm going to talk so fast that you won't have any opportunity to answer 'yes' or 'no.'

"If I had the framing of the laws she went on, I should make every name given at birth a provisional one and give every one the privilege of changing it upon attaining voting age. But unfortunately they haven't handed me that job and there is no such law, therefore it behooves parents and guardians to beware how they sin against helpless infants.

"If I weren't thinking of that," I said with a wry smile, "I'd name my baby Harriet and be done with it. But I don't like the name and I'm sure my daughter wouldn't."

She isn't a Harriet," Lillian said, walking over to the cathedral and looking down at the sleeping infant. "And as the sole presence she isn't a Margaret either. Of course Dickey and your father would like her named after you, but have you reflected that there hardly could be two Margies in the one family, and for the mother to have the diminutive and the daughter the dignified name would be sort of 'flooey' as Marion so elegantly expressed it. I wish you could find a name that didn't belong to either family. I don't believe Mother Graham would care so much about being slighted if you got yours, too. But to have the name of 'her side of the house' ignored, while her 'in-laws' triumphed! You can't do it, my dear, even if Dickey does want it, for your peace of mind is worth more than anything else just now and you won't be able to find the word, spell it or pronounce it, if Mother Graham gets on one of her rampages, which I warn you surely will happen if that baby is named after you instead of her. What she'd do if you named her after me no mind can imagine. But I do wish I could find a way out."

"Will you forgive an old man for eavesdropping without meaning it and let him suggest a solution?" said my father from the open doorway.

The Child Who Whines

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A mother wanted to know recently why her 10-year-old boy never made a request that he didn't whine or, rather than asking in the usual tone.

There is one quick and easy reply, but it doesn't cover the whole situation. That reply is: Because he GETS WHAT HE WANTS that way.

The obvious follow-up to that is to deny the child all his requests until he makes them in a normal pleasing tone of voice. If whining, like tantrums, tears and sulking doesn't get a little fellow anywhere he is going to adopt new tactics.

The ramifications of the whining-child situation usually concern themselves with a patient, martyr-like mother. It's sad, but quite true, as you can prove to yourself by observing such cases.

And the mother will tell you as a rule that she is trying her very best to do what is right for her child. She does everything to prove him but as time goes on he becomes harder and harder to please and also harder and harder to live with.

The mother does too much in most cases. She gradually descends into the home background until she has no "rights," no peace, no life except in trying to keep the whining child happy.

And that is unfair both herself and the child who has come to know that his whining tone will get him what he desires.

Nobody likes a whiner. Don't allow your child to be one. And, just as you said to your baby when he was very young: "Let mother see a happy baby and he may have the ball." You can suggest this to the same methods with the older child who has fallen into the ugly habit of half-crying for things instead of asking for them like a normal human being.

Let's have a happy tone—you don't have to whine for things. "Can be your STOP sign. And don't see your green light until the child's tone HAS changed. He'll soon get the idea.

Don't Scrape

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Procrastination steals time and teeth. Postponing the pilgrimage to the dentist's office increases the amount of pain and the size of the bill. Every six months the bases of the teeth should be scraped free of tartar. Unless it is removed there will be decay, gum irritation, chances of an army of germs invading tissues, setting up a state of inflammation and infection. Once a day dental floss should be passed between the teeth to remove foreign particles that escape the brush. After the brushing, use a mouth wash, swishing it around vigorously, every which way.

Cosmetics are not to be scorned. No sensible woman curls a supercilious nose at them. No sensible woman believes that they'll do much good if she doesn't pay due regard to the simple laws of health; drink in fresh ozone, clip off nine hours sleep every night, stick to a balanced diet, keep her skin clean, and master unpleasant emotions. Without health there is no 60-watt flicker in the eye, no pink velvet bloom upon the alabaster cheek, no spirit in the step. The temple of beauty must be builded upon a foundation of vitality and well being.

If by chance you have acquired a tanned skin surface on the back of your neck, where the sun's rays beat down without mercy, dip a cloth in buttermilk at night and place over the darkened surface, covering with a large, dry towel. It is not alone the acid in the milk that whites the skin, but the steaming of the flesh that follows the cold application.

Hangnails won't hang around the premises if the cuticle is kept detached from the nail. It lifts up easily if the hands are soaked in warm soap suds for five or 10 minutes. Use the orange wood stick gently. A bit of cuticle cream or oil is a help. If the flesh is hard and obstinate, powdered pumice stone can be mixed with the oil. Clip away ragged ends with curved, needle-point scissors.

There's a trick in making the permanent wave behave. Some girls have it, and some never learn it. Hot water should be used freely, the hair combed out straight, pushed toward the parting, pressed into wave lines. Brushing doesn't do any damage to a permanent, but it is no help at the moment if the wave pattern is to stay strong.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

At Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please inform me the correct order of service when having guests for both formal and informal dinners. That is, when the host serves at the table does the first plate go to the hostess or to the guest of honor?

2. What is done in case the guest of honor is a man, if the latter is correct? H. M.

1. The first plate should go to the guest of honor, and the host mentions the name of the guest of honor as he passes the plate. Mr. Graham, this is for you," or "Mrs. Graham, won't you keep this?" or "I hope that this is exactly as you like it, Mrs. Graham. Won't you keep it, please?"

And really at formal dinners when there is service, the first service should be to the guest of honor. In many households the hostess is served first, but this isn't the best form.

2. If the guest of honor is a man, the host serves first, the women, for the man guest of honor would be embarrassed by being served first.

Use the Fork and Knife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend and I are having a dispute about the following. She says the wrapping of chicken legs is for the purpose of picking up the bone. I think the collar is for the purpose of neatness and not to pick it up. Is this right? Are the best people doing that? And do you consider it quite all right?

H. P.

You are right. The lace collar is not a handle to take up the bone in our fingers. We should never do that except if we wish to be private where no one need watch the messy process. But it is as you say to cover the unattractive end of the bone.

The best people, if they are careful eaters as well as the best people, never take in their fingers foods that had better be eaten with a fork or a knife and fork. If possible use a fork, as the rule, or better a knife and fork.

vegetable coloring to tint a fairly green. Turn into a wet mold and set in the refrigerator for several hours. Unmold and garnish with fresh mint leaves and segments of pineapple. This dessert may be made in individual molds or in a ring mold, when it is very handsome if the center is filled with fresh fruit.

ICED LEMON MERINGUE PUDDING Beat the yolks of 3 eggs to a light froth, add ½ a cupful of sugar and beat again until light and fluffy. Fold in the grated rind and juice of 1 lemon. Turn into the double boiler and simmer, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Meanwhile whip the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, gradually folding in half a cupful of sugar, combine the 2 mixtures, folding the whites of the eggs thoroughly but carefully into the yolks, add ¼ teaspoonful of salt. Pour into sherbet glasses and chill well, or partially freeze in the mechanical refrigerator. Serve topped with a rosette of whipped cream and a ripe berry or a maraschino cherry.

* * *

APPLE PAN DOWDY Pare and quarter green harvest apples to make 3 cupfuls, if very large cut into eighths. Prepare a sirup of ¾ cupful of sugar and ½ a cupful of water, cook 5 to 7 minutes, then add the apples and simmer till clear but not broken. Butter a square baking pan and arrange the apples in it, dot with butter and if desired a dash of cinnamon or mace, pour over the sirup, cover with a flaky pie crust or a rich biscuit dough and bake in a quick oven; cut in squares and serve with hard sauce.

* * *

CHILLED STRAWBERRIES WITH PINEAPPLES

All the berries may be used for fruit cocktails. Strawberries chilled and served with cubed pineapple in their own juices formed by the dissolving of powdered sugar—or, raspberries covered with sweetened juice obtained from some of the crushed berries or quite ripe blackberries mixed with a little sweetened orange juice are thoughts that the clever homemaker can work out for herself.

Orange or pineapple or both, mixed with strawberries and raspberries, makes another combination; or canned or fresh cherries mixed with berries and pineapple or orange in usual proportions, are delicious.

* * *

CANNED OR FRESH PEARS DICED WITH GRAPES

Canned or fresh pears diced, mixed with seeded white grapes and strawberries or raspberries, is a cocktail that is well liked and, if sometimes you add orange or apricot or peaches, you will like the variation. The only dressings I ever use are the fruit juices, sweetened or maraschino juice, or sometimes ginger ale.

* * *

APPETIZERS THAT USE CREAM CHEESE

One method is to mix equal portions of nippy cream cheese and minced stuffed olives and spread over your toasted bread. Another is to toast one side of the bread, cream your butter and mix with cream cheese and spread the untoasted side of the bread thickly with the mixture, then grate cheese over the top of this mixture, adding a dash of cayenne and maybe some minced pickled walnuts to the creamed paste. Slide under the broiler until the grated cheese has melted and serve very hot.

* * *

SUBSTITUTE FOR PATE DE FOIE

For those of us who do not feel that we can afford the pate de foi glass, suppose I give you a recipe that will make a dandy substitute.

Purchase liver sausage, remove from the casing, mash and add a little mayonnaise with a very little dry mustard. Mix well and use for your canapes with any garnish that you wish to combine with it.

Or you can make a good substitute by boiling some calves liver until it is tender, then put through a puree sieve. Boil down the liquid in which the liver was cooked until thickish, and add to liver, season highly with salt and a dash of cayenne, onion juice and Worcestershire sauce. This makes a delicious paste for either canapes or sandwiches.

* * *

RYE BREAD CANAPES

This might be termed a canape served in small portions, or it might be an open face sandwich. Cut rye bread in quarter inch slices, toast in oven until browned, then butter. On each round lay one slice of tomato splinkled lightly with salt, then a slice of cheese sprinkled with paprika. Slide under the broiler until cheese is melted and serve immediately.

* * *

PINEAPPPLE PUFF BALLS

¼ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
¼ cup milk
1¾ cups flour
¼ teaspon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder.
⅔ cup grated or finely chopped pineapple

Cream the butter, add the sugar, beat and add the eggs, then flour, salt and baking powder sifted together alternately with milk.

Stir in pineapple and bake in small greased cups or muffin pans.

Pineapple Cream Sauce.

1 cup whipped cream
¼ cup sugar

Combine sugar and pineapple and let stand for at least a half hour. Just before serving mix with cream which has been beaten stiff.

Serves six.

OTHER CANAPE SUGGESTIONS

Six sardines, juice of one lemon, a dash of Worcestershire sauce, well mixed to a paste, makes another good canape. After it is spread on the hot bread, place a small circle of pickled beet on it and, if you wish a stuffed olive may be placed in the center of the beet. The above proportions will make six canapes.

Caviar is used with lemon juice, minced mild onion and a garnish of hard cooked eggs, minced whites and grated yolks. I will not elaborate on this because not many of you will like the caviar.

For the pate de foie gras canapes, prepare the bread as directed, and for six persons allow three tablespoons of the mixture, well blended with one-eighth cup of cream, a dash of cayenne pepper and salt to taste. Spread the mixture on the bread, and garnish with parsley or with wee slivers of sweet pickle.

BUCS DOUBLY FORTIFIED AT SECOND

Tom Thevenow

IF OUIMET, WHO is in the semi-finals today for the sixth time since 1927, should succeed in going through the last two rounds to the title, he would break all comeback records for time elapsed between victories scored by any player in American major tournaments. It was in 1914 that the Boston man beat Jerry Travers, 6 and 5, for the national amateur title, and if successful today and tomorrow Ouimet will be the first player ever to win two championships in the country so far apart as 17 years. Only the 24 year stretch between John Ball's first and eighth triumphs in the British amateur, 1888-1912, would surpass the achievement.

Gabby Street

Street broke in as a professional in 1900 and was active in the game until the close of the 1920 season. His only streak in his diamond career in that time came in 1918, when Gabby was in the Army overseas, and did not begin his long service in the working ranks of the sport with big and minor league clubs he caught in the remarkable total of 1,793 games.

MIKE FERRARI, DUKE football captain about whom Head Coach Elmer Layden is building the 1931 varsity team, is a young man of many parts, some of them rather contradictory. For instance, Ferrari has been suspended by Layden 'the fastest charging guard Layden ever had.' Mike sauntering about the campus after class is a sight to take Time for the manager of the debating team and Layden also gets gray hairs. Not that Ferrari lacks a practical football purpose. He is well built and weighs 175 pounds.

Jack Dempsey

ON THE SERIES of four-round bouts against a Pack of palookas in the Architects' the Dempsey ballyhoo has succeeded to the point that critics and fans are making much of his performances. They say he fights on his toes and is close to having his old speed. No doubt he has for four rounds. But I'd want the real test, and the latter won't come until he goes a longer distance against better opponents. In giving all their attention to his punch, his quickness, his timing and his judgment of distance, the Northumberlanders are overlooking the most important detail of all and the one on which his chances of making a successful comeback will depend more than on anything else. That is his legs. Even at the age of 36 he may have all the other things needed, but he can't hope to get anywhere unless the old pegs hold up under hard going over a route, and soft four-round bouts do not answer that question.

BRAME DEPRESSED

When I learned that Brame had been fined the club was in St. Louis. I talked with him and he confirmed the news of the punishment. Leaving St. Louis after finishing the series with the Cardinals, Hyatt talked quite freely about the matter but he appeared to be opposed to saying anything for publication that would look like a complaint.

Brame was terribly downcast on the train when I talked with him.

"The way I felt in the clubhouse after losing that game no amount of money could have changed my spirits," sighed the big pitcher. "I guess from the stands it seemed as if I loafed on those bunts, but the folks in the stands, including Mr. Dreyfuss, perhaps did not realize how soft was the ground. I will admit both runners could have been thrown out, and as I said I would have given almost anything to win that game, but I just could not seem to get hold of the ball in time.

FIRST FINE OF CAREER

"Another thing about the matter is the fact that that was the first time in my whole career I have ever been close to being fined. Why the desire in me to win is so great that I cannot recall where I have even been called down in a ball game. When I was winning regularly for the Pirates in other seasons and when my health was better, I often worked out of turn and was glad to do it because Barnes, Dreyfuss and Donie Bush seemed to put so much confidence in me that I got a kick out of it and tried hard to make them feel they were making no mistake. And my desire

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS ARE HIGHER IN SUMMER THAN IN WINTER—All metals and minerals expand with heat, and mountains, which are made of metals and minerals, will expand to some degree in hot weather. Therefore the great ranges of the Rockies will be higher in summer when their snow blankets are melted than in winter when their peaks are ice-bound. However, since the heat of the sun, even in the tropics, is not capable of penetrating any great depth into the surface of the earth's crust, the variation in height would be slight. TOMORROW—THE MAN WHO WAS BURIED ABOVE THE GROUND IN HIS BED.

VIRGINIA BOY SURPRISES IN AMATEUR

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB, CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—(AP).—The new boy wonder from Virginia, Billy Howell, played splendid golf today to lean the 38-year-old veteran Francis Ouimet of Boston, 1 up after 18 holes of their semi-final match in the United States Amateur golf championship.

In a second surprise party for the experts, Jack Westland, the Chicago district champion, outpointed Marvin J. McCarthy, Jr., New York favorite on the home-coming round and was 2 up at the 16-hole stage of the other semi-final tussle.

OUIMET OUTSTUDIED

Howell, just half the age of his famous opponent who held the title away back in 1914, surprised a gallery of nearly 1,000 spectators by outstudying Ouimet most of the way.

The Virginia youngster was straighter and longer off the tees, easily recovered from trouble and outputted one of the best putters in the business. Howell needed only one put on four greens. Ouimet was in traps on seven holes. Billy was in only four bunkers.

Howell negotiated the first round in 79 strokes to Ouimet's 80, well over par, and held an advantage most of the way after taking the lead for the first time on the sixth hole.

Twice Billy was 2 up on the back stretch but a stymie cost him a chance for a half on the home hole after he had clinched the seventeenth by laying Ouimet a dead stymie.

McCARTHY SLUMPS

Westland gained his margin on the back nine despite a ragged medal score of 41. McCarthy failed to get the range of the greens. He lost control with his iron shots while he tossed three holes away by poor putting.

They shot medal cards of 37, one over par, going out to finish all square. McCarthy winning two holes with a pair of birdies and Westland two others, one with a birdie. McCarthy was distinctly off form coming back and needed 41 shots. He won only the par 5 eighteenth and that with a shaky 6 as Westland took two to get out of a trap. The cards:

RECEPTION FOR BILLY

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 4.—(AP).—Win or lose, there's a big reception in the making for Billy Howell when he comes back to his home town.

Just what form the celebration will take had not been decided today, but Alan J. Saville, president of the Hermitage Billy's home club, has enlisted the support of the Chamber of Commerce and civic clubs of the city in the move to honor the slender youth battling with Francis Ouimet in the semi-finals of the national amateur golf championship today.

Billy and Chandler Harper, who qualified, were the first Virginians ever to enter the national amateur tournament.

E. O. Swanson, Minneapolis civilian was second with 549 and Conrad E. Nardhus, Navy reserve, Highland Park, Ill., third, 508.

JACK TO FILL RING DATES

PORTLAND, Sept. 4.—(AP).—Jack Dempsey, grief-stricken at the death of his brother, Barney, in Los Angeles, announced today he would fulfill all immediate boxing exhibition contracts, including one at Eugene, Ore., tonight.

"My first impulse was to call everything off," Jack said, "but it would not be fair to the promoters, who have gone to great expense, nor to the people who had laid plans to see the exhibitions."

Dempsey will meet Jimmy Byrne, Matchfield, Ore., in the four-round exhibition in Eugene. After watching Dempsey fight at Shepherd, Wash., last night, Leo Lyons announced he had decided to withdraw from a four-round exhibition bout with the ex-champion at Reno Monday.

Carnera to Claim Title by Forfeit

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(INS).—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, announced today he would claim the world heavyweight boxing championship unless Max Schmeling fulfilled his contract to fight him on September 17.

This information was forwarded to Gen. John B. Chinnin, president of the National Boxing Association, in Chicago by Leon See, the Italian's manager.

According to see contracts for the bout, to be conducted by the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois, were signed last January and approved by the National Association.

Jim Kelly Lands Kayo On Walker

DON CURTAILS SPEED TRIALS

DETROIT, Sept. 4.—(AP).—Hoping to defeat the jinx that has pursued virtually every effort of foreign contenders to lift the Harmsworth speedboat trophy since Gar Wood won it more than a decade ago, Kaye Don, British speed king, is withholding whatever tricks he is disposed to take until the first heat of the race tomorrow afternoon.

It was largely because of the many hazards his boat, Miss England II, will face in the contest with Wood that the British challenger suddenly decided to curtail his preliminary trial runs over the course.

Outnumbered three to one by the defending team and admittedly handicapped by Wood's greater familiarity with the course, Don nevertheless has been hailed as the most formidable pilot Wood ever faced.

Don however has made no ambitious claims for himself or his boat. He realizes that his Miss England II has been driven faster than any powerboat ever was piloted before, at a speed of 110.323 miles an hour—but he realizes too that the history of Harmsworth competition since Wood captured the trophy has been a story of misfortune for the challenger.

'Good Luck,' Helen Says of Net Wins

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—(INS).—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody was home today, but only for a month.

Returning from her successful invasion of Eastern tennis courts, where she again acquired the national women's title which she relinquished by not playing last year, the champion smilingly disposed of her victories with the simple remark:

"I had good luck, that was all."

Pladner Beats Biron; Walker Sees Bout

PARIS, Sept. 4.—(AP).—Emile (Spider) Pladner, French bantamweight champion, retained his title last night by outpointing Erancesco Biron in a 12-round battle but had to share the honors of the evening with Mayor James J. Walker, of New York.

Before taking his ringside seat, Walker was pushed into the ring and introduced to French boxing enthusiasts as "New York's great sporting Mayor." He was given a big hand by the crowded house.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Fans often ask me what happened to Hack Wilson this year. Well, of course, they deadened the ball in the National League this season, but Hack has been hitting like they also deadened the bats.

According to Babson's charts, old Hackenschmidt is batting about 100 points under 1930 and unless he puts up more margin with the scorekeepers, Hornsby is liable to sell him out, but that should worry Hack, if he only had one more leg he could always get a job as a grand piano.

King of home run hitters one year and benched the next, Hack should start exchanging souvenir postcards with King Alfonso.

'LEAN' SEASON IN PROSPECT FOR SKIBOS

TARTANS LACK EXPERIENCE, RESERVES

(This is the first of an annual series of special articles written by Jess Carver, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph football writer, dealing with the prospects of tri-state district college elevens. The article on Duquesne with photos of the Dukes in action in their training camp, will appear in Sunday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

By JESS CARVER

Only the very unsophisticated and the extremely ardent are visualizing a lining brighter than a smoky gray to the Carnegie Tech football cloud this fall. The future holds a hue far from appearing rosate; it doesn't even appear to be salmon pink despite the usual maximum of confidence and spirit in the Tartan camp and it will take all the artistry at the command of Wally Steffen and Bob Waddell to bring the Skibo banner through the campaign that confronts it in any condition other than badly tattered.

Those who became feverish confidence in Tech spirit and in the abilities of the coaches, believe that the Tartans eventually will crash through their paltry schedule of eight games without losing at least four and maybe five games, do so because they fervently think that gobs of the old fight and spirit will offset the following handicaps:

A—Lack of a consistent punter.

B—Absence of experienced ends.

C—Lack of adequate reserve strength.

D—Lack of a power-house fullback.

The tough part of it is that the majority of Tech's big league opponents will have as much spirit and pep, as well as the ingredients the Tartans appear to lack.

MANY STARS LOST

It is no secret that Tech's eleven last year was a disappointment. From that team, which promised so much, were lost fullbacks of the class of Kanis and Mobilio, linemen such as John Dreshar, John Highberger, Pete Flanagan and Len Schnupp and halfbacks of the caliber of Dutch Erth, one of the best in the East, Thaler Flanagan and Oscar Carlson.

This year's Tartan squad is not without class, but it is not well balanced and its reserve strength, will consist for the most part of untried material.

It is difficult to analyze the situation at Tech so early for the reason that the coaches themselves haven't done so. Even now, Steffen and Waddell are engaged in a process of experimentation. Linemen are being tried as backs and backs as linemen. The system of play may be changed entirely. Some one must come forward to do the kicking; a fullback must be developed and a forward wall reconstructed.

The backfield is to be forged around Capt. Murray Armentrout, a 6-foot 2-inch 188-pounder, who is doing his best to develop into a punter and who may be depended upon as a ball carrier. It looks as though Stuart Dueger has the inside track for the quarterback post—Armentrout being slated for one of the halves. Dueger replaced McCurdy last year as the signal barker and field general and with McCurdy ineligible this year the North Tonawanda (N. Y.) lad is the only experienced field general on the squad.

KAVEL AT HALFBACK

George Kavel will be hard to count out for the other halfback post. He runs and hits hard. His passing is nothing at which to sneeze. He and Armentrout head the halfback list with Johnny Graveno, who was injured a great part of last year; John Savles, a promising sophomore; Joe Brewer, Angelo Bevevino, Ewing, Tony Schmitt, Whitey Zingler (who may turn out to be a life-saver) and Max Kummer, scrapping for reserve berths.

You can write your own ticket as far as the fullback berth is concerned. Vorderburg, when he rounds into shape after a year's layoff, may be the money. Hooks Sample, a guard, has been tried at the post, but there is nothing to indicate that the shift will be permanent. Brindel, a sophomore, is a candidate, and small as he is, the hard-working scrappy Jerry O'Toole may wind up in the spot.

The line must be constructed around Duke Ducanis, veteran and extremely capable center; Bunny Burzio and Sampie, guards, and Don Fletcher, a tackle.

The end situation is acute. Marvin Potts is a gamecock of the first water, but he's small. Bill Skettres, Tony Ostrosky and Jack Croissant have been under fire, but have been starting wings. Colin Stewart, a heft; Ohioan, looks like a pip of a prospect, as does Dib Lewis. Joe Savoldi's double, but these lads are sophomores. Tech is going to need all the experienced help it can muster this fall.

CROFT FINE CANDIDATE

Fletcher will hold down one tackle, with towering Thurman Croft a good bet to be his running mate. Elsaesser, who played some last year; Jim Baushke, inunted last fall, but regarded as a fine prospect; Latimer, a sophomore; Forsman, another sophomore with 195 pounds heft and chunky Harry Stauffer, ineligible last year, will provide Fletcher and Croft with their chief opposition. Burns, a tackle last year, is being tried as an end. He'll be a valuable man to have around for either position.

Sample and Burzio have the inside track for the guard jobs. Henry Dreshar, brother of the famous John; Tony Kebe, a junior; Carl Heinzer, a likely appearing sophomore, weighing 190 pounds; Bert Pouncey, a senior reservist and Red Jones, who was Ducanis' understudy at center last year, are other candidates for the center of the line positions.

Ducanis, unless he is injured, will be counted upon for the center post. John Harry Seigal, former Fifth Avenue High star, has shown much promise as a second string snapper-back that the coaches have been able to give Jones a try at guard.

The schedule is the most difficult any Carnegie eleven has ever been called upon to face. There isn't much kick in the first game with the University of Buffalo but Wash-Jeff, Georgia Tech, Purdue, Notre Dame, Pitt, Temple and New York University must be battled in a row. The Georgia Tech, Temple and N. Y. U. games are on foreign fields. All others will be played in the Stadium.

OPPONENTS TOUGH

The toughest (not that they all are not tough enough) tests are expected to come up in the Purdue, Notre Dame, Pitt and N. Y. U. tussles. All four appear to be extremely formidable this fall. Wash-Jeff, second on the card, hardly will be a setup. Temple is going to be tough, and Georgia Tech, remembering the lacing assimilated here a year ago, will have both mitts loaded for the Tartans in Atlanta.

In short, Judge Steffen and Bob Waddell are very much in the position of the gent who was treed by the bear, and who sent up this prayer:

THE SQUAD

ALEX DUCANIS

The veteran Alex Ducanis figures to hold down his center job despite strong opposition offered by Red Jones and Harry Seigal. Ducanis' play is steady and consistently good both on the attack and defense.

MURRAY ARMENTROUT

Armentrout, captain of the team, playing his last year for old Carnegie, is the key man in the backfield construction work. The Tartans' halfback ace, long recognized as a star ball carrier, is showing promise as a punter.

DON FLETCHER

BUCCOS, CARDS RESUME PLAY

to win for Jewel Ens is just as strong.

"That sum of money is heavy, but I am telling you the truth when I say that it doesn't mean anything compared with the humiliation I suffered. But I don't want you to print anything in my defense. Moreover, I do not hold any bad feeling whatsoever toward the owner of the team. I have been treated like a king in Pittsburgh, have been paid well for my services and everything has been fine until this year, which has brought me considerable sickness and now this new trouble. However I must say Mr. Dreyfuss has been good to me."

So that is Brame's story and a newspaper would not be fulfilling its obligation were it not used, even though the athlete in question is opposed to any further publicity in the matter. Moreover, Brame is known among his teammates as a "hard loser" or one who often "crabs" around the clubhouse when the Pirates are beaten.

A TOUGH SEASON

It is told on good authority that a certain Pirate approached Brame after the infielders had kicked away a game.

"I'm sorry for you, Ery," said the other player. "We are all trying to win, but that was the fifth game we've kicked away behind you this season and I have not heard you complain to Jewel once. You're having it tough every way, but I'll say I have plenty of admiration for you when you can keep still under the kind of fielding we've been giving you."

THEVENOW-PIET STAR

The Buccos fielded and batted like champion yesterday as they smeared the league champions. Tommy Thevenow's double with two out and two on in the third sent in the winning tallies.

Thevenow and Tony Piet, new secondsacker, gave a rare exhibition in batting and fielding. Their defense play must have made Gabby Street's head spin.

Burleigh Grimes and Larry French were early casualties. Both were shelled from the hill. Bob Osborn did a fine relief trick for the Pirates as he carried his club to victory. Lindsey and Ehrm followed Grimes to the slab.

W. VA. TOURNEY OPENS TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 4.—The third annual Morgantown Country Club invitation net tourney got under way here this morning with the list of entries attaining 82. The men's singles division was slated to monopolize today's attention, men's doubles beginning tomorrow morning and women's singles opening tomorrow afternoon.

The seeded group, chosen last evening by Chairman Charley Hodges and his committee in star chamber session at the clubhouse, boasts names of eight highly talented players, representatives of as many different municipalities. The ratings follow:

1—Bowles Mitchell, Washington, D. C.
3—Randolph Shields, Winchester, Va.
4—E. J. Arkle Wheeling, W. Va.
5—Dr. John L. O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh.
6—Bertrand Welch, Rockville, Md.
7—William S. Hanway, Uniontown, Pa.
8—John A. Parsons, Morgantown, W. Va.

Twenty Grand, Sun Beau Race Tomorrow

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Twenty Grand Greentree's sensational 3-year-old, will run in the Saratoga Cup race on the closing day of the meet here tomorrow. Twenty Grand will carry 118 pounds, the announcement by its owner assignation said.

Entered in the classic feature race will be Will Sharpe Jr.'s Sun Beau, carrying 116 pounds; Quarter Deck, of Mr. Morton L. Schwartz' stable carrying 126, and Mr. Ashley's Belair stud stable horse, carrying 118 pounds.

GIRL SETS RECORD

LEIPZIG, Germany, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Fraulein Hertha Wunder established a new women's world record for the 100 meter breast stroke swim last night when she covered the distance in 1 minute 42 4-10 seconds. The old record was 1 45 8-10. Held by Marie Baron, of Holland.

BELMONT OUT AFTER KAYO

Jimmy Belmont, the Braddock South who holds two knockout wins over Buck McLernan, predicts the same fate for Bucky Lawless, clever mittman of Syracuse, N. Y., when they meet in the 10-round main bout at the Motors Bowl, North Braddock, Tuesday night.

Belmont has been in training for the past week for this bout, and his manager, Frank Klaiss, declares that Jimmy is in as good a shape right now as he was for McLernan.

Belmont will have to be in condition if he figures to take Lawless, who is one of the smartest welterweights in the country. Lawless lost to Ted Yarosz at the Bowl a few weeks ago, but came back a week later and lambasted Donald Fagg at Hickey Park.

Between Rounds

The semi-final at the Bowl between Indian Tiger West, of Brookville, and Walter Salmons, of New Castle, is one that should satisfy the fans who seek knockouts and knockouts. These two boys pack wallops to supply this entry. Referee Sammy Bloom, Boxing Commissioner Eggert, Bob McVay, boxer, Chief Eggert in the second bout and Bruno Goldberg upset the show against Lew Carpenter.

Jimmy Moore, State middleweight of the Hill, hopes Billy Brown, of Erie, in the second main event at Franklin tonight, and Harry Thompson, of Wayne, is paired with Bobby Angel, of Erie, in one of the preliminaries.

Casual onlookers and more critical observers were impressed with the natural poise of speed and action of Capt. Mike Ferraro, of the Dukes. Ferraro promises to be a real leader. He has a brisk, businesslike attitude and hustles all the time.

One of the most promising boys we have seen in action in a long time is Joe Bellacosa, Duquesne University lightweight. Bellacosa is a boxer and a fighter and has the punch to go with his skill. He is a product of the Duquesne Boys' Club.

DUKES OPEN GRID DRILLS

A deluge of football players struck Duquesne University's campus yesterday as the Dukes opened formal fall training. There were more grid hopefuls practicing on the fall gridiron, the Bluff practice field, than there are candidates in the lists for the coming primaries, which means there were entered too many ball players for either safety or comfort.

Drills were held both in the morning and afternoon for both freshmen and varsity candidates. All the varsity regulars expected were on hand save Ben Barrett, center, and Ben Paulina, the halfback. The alarm clocks must have been on the fritz.

Time Out

Yesterday's workout at Carnegie Tech was a pirate compared to the drills of the preceding three days, as Steffen and Waddell became inoculated with the germ of mercy and gave their aspiring varsity candidates a vacation from scrimmage. Third and fourth stringers however donned head equipment and took part in some rough work.

An added attraction was the appearance of Jock Sutherland, Pitt coach, and several members of his staff, who put the Skibo squad through a workout.

Casual onlookers and more critical observers were impressed with the natural poise of speed and action of Capt. Mike Ferraro, of the Dukes. Ferraro promises to be a real leader. He has a brisk, businesslike attitude and hustles all the time.

STEEL CITY LEAGUE

MINOR LEAGUE
Wells at Ben Avon.

The muchly kicked about Book-Dormont clash in the City League, which will carry with it the second half championship, again is slated for play this evening. Rain washed it out three times, and when it was staged a week ago, it ended in the first inning in an argument.

Dormont, champion of the first half, naturally desires to win this evening, set up the second half title and get out of engaging Books in a playoff series for the league title. If Books win, then a postseason series will be staged. Manager Falconer, of Dormont, has the veteran Bill Doak and Abe Martin groomed for duty on the mound. Besterling, pilot of the Books, will counter with Joe Vitelli, of Ambridge, or Steve Roscoe. The game is scheduled to get under way promptly at 6 o'clock.

In the Steel City League, the O'Malleys tackle St. Elizabeth, and in the Minor loop, Wells engage Ben Avon at Ben Avon.

Reliance won the first game of the playoff series with Riecks for the C. & I. League title last evening by winning a 2-0 win. The game was a hotly-contested duel between Gormley and Lawson, the Reliance hurler holding a slight edge.

In the Steel City League, the Cardinals nosed out Mifflin, 2-1, and Stone defeated DePasquale, 6-2. The Homestead Grays walloped the Homestead All-Stars in a charity benefit game at Homestead, 10-1.

CENSUS AREA CHANGE ASKED

An effort to have the Census Bureau revise its figures and map on Pittsburgh's trading area, denoted as Pittsburgh Metropolitan area, is under way by the Chamber of Commerce. It is hoped to at least include all of Allegheny County in the district, it being pointed out that the state of Pennsylvania, through constitutional amendment and legislative enactment provides that the Metropolitan City take in the entire county.

The Census Bureau in making its map of the Metropolitan area, included all contiguous territory where the population was 150 per square mile, or where districts with a less population was entirely surrounded by an area of greater population. It was due to this fact that some of Allegheny County was omitted, being entirely farming sections. However, it is claimed these districts are actually served by Pittsburgh as the trading center.

Chairman George S. Davison's committee of the Chamber of Commerce will make further efforts to have the area as mapped out by the chamber in 1930 adopted by the Census Bureau as the Metropolitan area. The map, prepared after numerous consultations with census officials, gave the area of which Pittsburgh is the logical economic center, a population of 2,500,000.

Manchuria Reprisal Threatened by Japan

TOKIO, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Leading vernacular newspapers here today said Japan might resort to force against Manchuria because of an alleged unsatisfactory accounting by the latter for the killing a month ago of Capt. Shintaro Nakamura as an asserted spy.

Pronouncing the case one of murder, Nichi Nichi, Asahi, Jiji Shimpo and other vernacular papers said the attitude of the war office toward Mukden had suddenly stiffened and that the Japanese authorities had demanded a more satisfactory explanation.

Foil Bank Robbery In 'Mustache' Stage

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—A bank robbery that reached only the mustache stage was revealed by authorities today. One of three men who walked into a costume shop yesterday said:

"Something small and snappy in small mustaches."

The proprietor, suspicious, called police. All three were arrested. Police said they found pistols and a quantity of rope in their room, and that they admitted discussing a bank holdup.

Two Boys Injured In Traffic Crash

Two boys were injured when their auto crashed on a steep hill on the Dravosburg road. John Perchak, 14, of 1211 Market street, McKeesport, is in the McKeesport Hospital with lacerations of the left arm. Mike Bacha, 14, of 208 Third street, McKeesport, was treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises. A third boy in the car escaped with minor injuries.

Two Fatally Shot In Kentucky Feud

MONTICELLO, Ky., Sept. 1.—(AP.)—A long standing feud between members of two mountain families flared again here last night and Lon Guffy, 35, and Otho Lovelack were fatally wounded in a pistol battle at the Wayne County Fair Grounds.

Five Brothers, All Sailors, Visit Mother

SEATTLE, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Five brothers, sailormen all, met in Seattle with their mother, the first time in 15 years their vessels have been in port together. The mother, Mrs. Marie Gladsick, said:

"It was wonderful to have my boys home again. It was just like when they were youngsters together."

Two of the boys came home as masters of liners. The other three are first officers.

The brothers said:

CHINESE FLEE FROM MEXICO

NOGALES, Ariz., Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Jails on the Arizona side of the Mexican border were crowded today by Chinese fleeing from Mexico under an expulsion edict by the legislatures of several Northern Mexican states.

The Chinese, many in fear of bodily harm, were held in jails for hearings on a charge of entering this country illegally.

The expulsion order originally set a deadline of tomorrow. The time limit, however, was canceled yesterday by Gov. Rodolfo Elias Calles, of Sonora, a son of the former president of Mexico. Several hundred Chinese gathered at the Nogales, Sonora, port of entry, expected little comfort from the decree of Gov. Calles and continued to seek entry into the United States. They planned to go to San Francisco and from there to Hongkong.

13 New Cases Put Under Quarantine

SALVATIONISTS' HEAD IN COURT

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Sept. 4.—(INS.)—Gen. William Higgins, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, was summoned to police court here today on charges in connection with maintenance of a "common loding house."

The charges were brought because Gen. Higgins did not reside in the house when the registered superintendent was away.

The defending attorney deplored the summons, stating it was the first complaint ever lodged against a Salvation Army home, adding that the summons had "besmirched the good name of the army."

The summons was dismissed upon payment of costs.

Heavy Rains Flood Houses in Dublin

DUBLIN, Ireland, Sept. 4.—(AP.)—Torrents of rain which began early yesterday and were still falling this afternoon have raised streams to the flood level and sent those who dwell along the river banks in this vicinity scurrying for shelter. Houses in the low-lying parts of Dublin have been flooded and many shops could not open for business. At Ballsbridge, where the horse shows are held, the fields were like lakes and roads were rivers.

We can stand a mass production of marches. Nothing so invigorating as a good march. But it's got to be good. Best march of the last three years is Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band." Despite the publicity it brought her, Maine is not satisfied with her Stein Song, believes it cannot be classed strictly as a Maine song. Which seems to us another way of saying Maine doesn't want to be too closely identified as a song with the good old college drinking-her-down custom. At any event, Maine is on the hunt. Big Well Revives Interest in Tioga Gas

WELLSBORO, Pa., Sept. 4 (INS)—Waning interest in the Tioga County gas field was revived today as the J. Le Le No. 1 well of the Allegany Gas Company in Farmington Township was drilled in with a flow of 40,000,000 cubic feet.

The well is the sixteenth in the field and the fifth to be brought in by the Allegany company.

Workers struck a 17,000,000-foot flow when the drills were only one foot in the pay sand. The well drilled itself in two feet deeper with the greater flow resulting.

Question a Day:

Answer—The list of restricted numbers would fill this whole column. You might obtain this list by writing any local station. Certain numbers are restricted from the radio because the Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers believe frequent repetition harmful. Hits from musical comedies and operettas are restricted mostly because the producers feel that their playing on the air cuts down theater attendance.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Third Quarter Deficit Indicated for Chicago Mail Order House.

Montgomery Ward and Company sales thus far in the third quarter have averaged less than $16,000,000 a month and with a good seasonal upturn in September still in doubt, indications are that the company will report for the third quarter a deficit of fairly substantial proportions. Whether Ward will be able to cover its class "A" dividend requirements of $1,428,000 this year now depends on how well sales pick up during the final quarter, which because of holiday trade, is always the most important quarter of the year from earnings standpoint.

One market commentator with an urge for figuring calculates that the traders' dollar, taking stocks around prevailing levels, will purchase almost three times the amount of equity that it would have covered early in September, 1929. This, of course, is but another way of illustrating the scope of the deflation which the speculative market has experienced in the last two years. Taking one of the popular industrial stock averages he shows that a decline of 244 points has been registered from the September, 1929, highs to the prevailing low levels. In other words the average used was 2.85 times the current level at the peak reached early in this month two years ago. This commentator estimated the 1929 stock dollar was worth $2.85 today, but some board room joshers were disposed to twist this reckoning around and wonder if they had not been handed a dollar's worth for $2.85 in 1929.

When speculative Wall street returns from its summer-end holiday to buckle down to business again its interest will center immediately in the outcome of the New York Central and New Haven dividend meetings. Directors of the latter road are scheduled to gather for action on Tuesday while the Central board will get together to determine the next quarterly payment of that road on Wednesday. The financial community is anticipating a downward revision in each instance from the current $6 basis to $4 annually. Two important public utility company boards, namely, those of the Western Union and International Telephone will meet on the same dates and the expectation is that adjustments will also be in order on their rates.

Despite the current low rate of operations in the steel industry, and the extreme bearishness prevalent toward steel stocks in general, there are several statistical sources which are outspokenly bullish on the iron and steel group at present levels. In their estimation, it is practically certain that steel production and consumption will double within the next few years. This will enable the earnings of the common stock of well-managed steel companies to come up to the averages of the five year period ended with 1928. It is held that conservation and caution should not act as restraining forces, since the steel stocks, like the industry, are usually tardy in reversing their trend.

Martial law in the East Texas oil fields will be lifted and prorated production resumed tomorrow. A total of 1,774 wells are to be turned open again in the morning for a rated flow of 225 barrels daily. This will make for an approximate daily total output of 400,000 barrels or less than half the rate of production in the last week of flow before martial law was invoked and the wells capped by government order. In that week production of this prolific area reached its peak to date at 848,450 barrels daily. There is no restriction in new drilling and with 345 rigs up and actively boring down a potential increase to around 480,000 barrels is in prospect if these operations are completed without many "dry holes." But provision is made for keeping the flow in control inasmuch as the new proration law is effective for 60 days and subject to immediate change.

Alaska Juneau continues to perform in keeping with precedent set over the last six or eight months in that it manages to "buck the trend" of the general market almost invariably. Juneau was rather a soft feature at the beginning of the week, when the general list was pretty well holding its own. But since the resumption of selling on a broad scale it has again turned to advance smartly. The stock is one of the few in which forces working in the constructive side have met with much in the way of success in their quest for higher prices. Today's advance was generally ascribed to operations by interests seeking to anticipate the regular dividend at next week's board meeting.

STOCK MARKET MAKES FEEBLE COMEBACK

Steel Drops to Another New Low, Then Recovers To Show Small Gain

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP.) The stock market made rather feeble efforts to get on its feet again today, after the wallon received from yesterday's selling wave.

Selling in advance of the three-day Labor Day shut-down appeared to have been largely completed and closing out of short commitments lent support in spots. There was enough hangover selling to make the market rather uneven, however, and declines were fairly general for a time in the morning. The market as a whole was dull.

United States Steel dropped a point to another new low at 82½, then recovered to show a small gain. Such issues as General Motors, DuPont, Radio and Westinghouse recovered to show small advances by early afternoon. Allied Chemical, Lambert, Krieger, American Can and Union Pacific sold up about a point. Utilities and communications issues were heavy. Some of the banking and specialty issues were heavy.

The weekly mercantile reviews were mildly cheerful, reporting continuance of the seasonal improvement in wholesale trade, which first became noticeable last week. Bradstreet's reported an encouraging note of optimism.

The better tone of the Berlin bourse on the second day of the resumption of trading, was also encouraging. The London market, however, weakened in response to yesterday's slump in Wall street, which was not pronounced until after that market had closed. An encouraging factor of trading in Berlin was that most of the selling orders were executed at prices unchanged a little below yesterday's, while only a fraction of yesterday's offerings found takers.

A private business and financial survey prepared by a large financial concern for its directors, says business leaders generally are looking for no more than a seasonal upturn this autumn, and some skepticism exists that the full seasonal increase will be attained. On the other hand, they do not expect business to recede materially from present levels, nor do they believe the final weeks of 1931 will be materially below the end of 1930.

WHEAT PRICES EASE OFF

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Moderate selling, based on relative weakness in Liverpool quotations, eased wheat prices slightly at the start here today. Trade was restricted because of the triple holiday ahead. Corn was firmer with offering light. Wheat opened steady to ¼ cent lower and showed little change. Corn started steady to ⅝ cent advance and held around initial quotations.

Tell Why U. S. Should Trade With Russia

By B. C. FORBES

In principle I am opposed to boycotting any market on purely political grounds. I realize, however, that trade is a serious thing, even when resorted to by great nations as a weapon of vital importance. To engage in it to be done by private citizens seems to me wholly indefensible.

The only test which should govern the business man in doing business with others — whether he can safely and advantageously do it. You may say that an American business man ought not to sell to Russia because it will be advantageous to him to build up competitive units in state control and thereby threaten the whole economic business structure.

MY OWN NOTION is that any productive capacity in Russia (except for raw materials will be exhausted for several generations by the needs of the Russian people themselves. This will raise their standard of living and that would be the best thing which could happen both to Russia and the whole world.

More than that, in the field of manufacture I have no fear that Russia will become competitive for a very long time to come with the great industrial nations. It takes a very long time to organize people like the Russians for such quality production as would enable them to compete in the world's markets.

SO FAR AS OUR company is concerned, the question can be dealt with on much narrower grounds. Broadly speaking, there are two types of electrical engineering in the world which have grown up to meet special conditions.

One is the American standard which deals with large power production units and transmission over long distances. The other is the European standard which because of their conditions was developed for relatively small production units and short transmission.

Now Russia's conditions are much more like ours than are those of Europe. The American standards are better suited to her. Whether we do it or not she is in the business of installing great base units of power supply and if she adopted the American standards in those units then Russia is likely to be developed electrically throughout on those standards.

Accordingly we could unite Russia in the long future with anything which she does not make herself from our standard designs of manufacture.

If we force Russia by a refusal to sell to adopt the European standards then we would be out of the Russian market forever, because with our higher labor costs, we could not compete with the European manufacturers on designs which were standard for them and special for us.

SOME OF THESE initial developments in Russia are of tremendous importance. In a larger perspective of political problems we must look forward to a very large electrical development in that country.

For our company or for America to be able herself from competing in that market merely because we do not like Stalin and his program would be most unjustifiable. The question of whether our company should sell to Russia therefore is quite a different matter from selling current consumable goods.

Standard Plate Prospects Brightened by Lease

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE PROSPECTS FOR THE reorganization or liquidation of the Standard Plate Glass Company have been materially improved by the announcement of plans for the resumption of operations at the company's Butler plant.

A lease has been signed with George C. Stewart and associates providing for the operation of the plant for eight months, with an option for renewal of this lease for an additional period, as well as a further option for the purchase of the plant. It is understood that the purchase price will be $750,000.

Standard Plate Glass Company has been in receivership for several years. The new interests who are leasing the plant are incorporating under the name of the Standard Plate Glass Corporation of Delaware. They have agreed to take over the operations of the old Standard Plate Glass Company. This would mean the liquidation of this account on far more satisfactory terms than under ordinary receivership conditions.

Receivers Appointed

IN MAY, 1930, JUDGE J. R. MacFarland appointed receivers for the old Standard Plate Glass Company. The company had $2,000,000 of 6 per cent gold notes due March 1, 1930. On this date the interest due on this funded debt and a principal payment was paid. Under agreements with [illegible] the balance was extended for a [illegible] years.

The [illegible] extended portion of [illegible]. The arrangement for the lease [illegible] operations by new interests with the ultimate possibility of the sale of the plant places the company in a position to take advantage of any improvement in the future in the plate glass business. It will be noted that the price of the physical properties to be paid under the agreement would provide for the complete liquidation of the outstanding principal of the 6 per cent notes.

Operations Unsatisfactory

THE STANDARD PLATE Glass Company was formed in 1923, when prosperity in the plate glass industry was at its height, by the merger of the Henderkamp Plate Glass Corporation and the Standard Plate Glass Company. This gave the organization two glass plants. Subsequently it acquired various paint producers and distributors.

Rapid changes in the plate glass industry soon put the company into difficulties. In 1925 foreign competition became a serious factor in the glass business. Plate glass prices were cut 25 per cent in May, 1925, and subsequent reductions cut quotations to practically half their former levels.

New Processes Discovered

SOME PLATE GLASS PRODUCERS were able to meet these changing conditions by the introduction of new manufacturing processes. But Standard Plate Glass was slow in perfecting these new methods. Losses were reported during recent years.

As a result of this unsatisfactory record, the company was unable to either fully repay or to refund its debt which matured on March 1, 1930.

Shortly before the receivership the Springdale plant was abandoned and operations were concentrated at the Butler plant, which was modernized to give it a production equal to the combined volume of the two plants in the past. If the operations of the Butler plant are successful under the lease arrangement, the way may be opened for the satisfaction of the remaining claim of 25 per cent of the outstanding notes.

CHAPTER XX.

"Alive!"

"Yes," said Tony, "alive. I—you'll never know what I felt. I asked to see her. I did see her—"

"You saw Evelyn Howard?" Fanchon gasped. She put her head in her hand . . . She said, muffled, "Tony, I didn't know! Believe me, I didn't know! I thought she had died, I was told she had died. The reporters told me on the train to New York. I thought—you can't rob the dead. I didn't dream . . . Tony, if she were alive, why haven't I heard? Why wasn't it in the papers? Why didn't Dr. Warren write me? He had my address."

"You left him money to care for her," Tony said.

"She was dying. I wanted her to have everything . . . and afterwards . . ."

"The funeral? But there wasn't any funeral. As to the report of her death, she was not expected to live, of course. The rumor went out from the hospital from mouth to mouth that she was dying. When it reached the town it had anticipated matters. The reporters apparently did not verify it. As to her being alive, I believe there were occasional references to it in the papers. But she was no one. She had no relatives. And circumstances made it impossible for the authorities to trace any. As a matter of fact they, through the doctor, had your own word for it that she was alone in the world, Fanchon."

"But she . . . ? why couldn't she . . . ?" began Fanchon desperately.

MEMORY GONE

"She remembers nothing," said Tony, gravely. "She is . . . like a child. They kept her there for some time. Put her, finally, in an institution nearby. She is quite—docile. I saw her. I expected to see you. I saw this stranger. I didn't guess, even then. Miss Smith? There might have been two Miss Smiths on the flight . . . the name Howard might have been wrong. I didn't know of course. Yet I suspected—something. But was not clear. From the girl herself I could, naturally, get nothing. Having represented myself as . . . the fiance of Miss Smith, I was forced to go through with it. Warren spoke of you, with great admiration. He told me about the money. I asked if he had communicated with this—charitable person. He said, no. That the girl was safe where she was. There was nothing you or anyone could do for her." He smiled again. "As far as Evelyn Howard is concerned," he told Fanchon, softly, "you are perfectly safe."

She was white from shock. But at his words she thrust the thought of Evelyn away from her. It would really not leave her. It would be ready and waiting for her when avain she must encounter it. Just now her business was with Tony. She repeated his words slowly.

"I have nothing to fear from Evelyn Howard. That is perhaps true. But—from you, Tony?"

"From me . . . nothing. If you do as I say. If you play the game."

She said, whiter still:

"I—can't marry you, Tony. You know that."

"I don't," he replied, "expect you to. I realize your—scruples. Although why," he went on, "they should be as strong as they once were I don't know—yet. For you haven't quite the same claim to—superiority that you once had, Fanchion."

She noted mechanically the difference in him. The lack of slang, the careful English, the avoidance of wise-cracking. She wondered about it dully. For the first time since their meeting she looked at him closely. He was—altered. Not only his added weight, but his expression. The small mustache made of course a difference.

She said, instantly:

"It isn't that. It's that I don't love you."

NEW BUSINESS

"Let that pass. You can do something for me. I am staying . . . in the East. No one knows me here. Those who would have known Antonio Francesconi do not know Cesare Gilli. Two can play at this game. I do not wish to identify myself with . . . Eastern members of my own profession. I prefer a new—shall we call it? business. In that, you can help me, as I have said. Since I have been here I have lived quietly. I have read a good deal. I have been," he smiled, anticipating her amazement, "to school. I had originally, Fanchon, considerable education, of various sorts. But I had grown careless. Cesare Gilli is one to whom carelessness would not appeal."

He added.

"I confess that until I found you, I did not know just how to establish this Gilli. Or in what branch of what profession. But then I did find you."

She asked sparring for time:

"But how? You have not told me how?"

"Your photograph, in the papers. An excellent likeness. Debutante!" He laughed unpleasantly.

"It was absurd, of course. Yet Mrs. Carstairs wished me to have a formal introduction to—her friends."

THREATENING

Her fingers went up to her throat in an unconscious gesture. She let the betraying hand fall back in her lap. Tony went on.

"You were fortunate in your choice of a relative. I have had Mrs. Carstairs looked up . . . it wasn't hard. There is, also, a son," he added, interrogatively.

"Ah! said Tony and that was all. He continued, "I would like very much to meet Mrs. Carstairs. I understand that introductions from her—"

"Tony," she cried desperately, "what is it you wish me to do?"

"Very little," he assured her, "merely to permit Cesare Gilli to call upon you—and your aunt—as a very old friend has a right to do. You met me," he reminded her, "let us say, in Hawaii. Or, if you like, further back in your interesting past."

"That is impossible," she told him, "to lend myself to such a deception is out of the question."

"There used to be an old saying," he remarked, "which I learned in school. A proverb perhaps. Or from the Bible. Something about straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel."

"And if I refuse? Oh, don't sit there, smiling, and . . . quoting proverbs! Tell me, frankly, if I refuse?"

"Then I shall be forced to intrude upon Mrs. Carstairs without an introduction and explain myself, to some extent, and explain you, . . . quite fully!"

Synopsis

Lovely Fanchon Meredith is wanted by the San Francisco police in connection with a murder committed by her sweetheart, "Tony." Fanchon did not know he was a gunman. She escapes by airplane under the name of "Smith." Aboard is Evelyn Howard, whom Fanchon had met on a voyage from Hawaii. Evelyn is going to New York to live with her aunt, the wealthy Mrs. Carstairs, whom she never saw. The plane crashes and Fanchon is the only survivor. To get away from Tony and the past, she goes to the Carstairs home as "Evelyn." A strong bond of affection grows between Mrs. Carstairs and her "niece." Colin Carstairs, the son, is at first antagonistic because of his "cousin's" Hawaiian escapades and her self-righteous attitude when his mother offered aid, but Fanchon's sincerity overcomes his objections. They fall in love. After a happy summer at Southampton, Fanchon makes her debut in New York. Colin, though realizing their relationship is a barrier, cannot resist professing his love. Fanchon cannot acknowledge hers without revealing her identity. A few days later a threatening note comes from Tony. She visits him and repulses his advances. Tony informs Fanchon that Evelyn is alive.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Friends Play Prank on Egotistical Man

Gladys

"Gladys?"

"Yes, Gladys."

"How long has this been going on?" he demanded.

"What?" Chet asked, trying not to be annoyed.

"Gladys."

"About 20 years."

"Go on with you, Chet—why that raving little doll baby must have been a mere infant in arms 20 years ago. Don't hand me any yarn that you've known her 20 years."

"You asked how long Gladys had been going on—she is 20."

"You saw me talking with her."

"That's so. Say, listen, Chet—who is she?"

"Gladys."

"The rest of it—address and telephone number, if you have that much information."

"Gladys Homer is the name, Mort."

"Got it—now the address, 'phone number—come across, Chet."

"Why?"

"Why? Listen to li'l old Chet Hallowell asking Mort Ingalls why he wants a girl's address and 'phone number? Do you think I want to send her poisoned candy or go and set her home afire?"

"I see," Chet said, "same old Mort Ingalls—the answer to every maiden's prayer—followed by millions and millions of beautiful girls who believe they cannot live without him."

"Oh, come now, not so thick, Chet."

INSISTS ON ADDRESS

Mortimer Ingalls was pleased, however. The one thing he loved best was to give an impression that he was a born lady-killer and pestered continually by beautiful girls who constantly fell in love with him.

Mortimer had come along just as Chick was chatting with Gladys Homer in front of the Sphere Theater. Mortimer, however, did not get there in time to butt in and let Gladys feast her eyes on him.

He had seen, as anyone might, that Miss Gladys Homer was an exceptionally beautiful girl, hence his sudden and deep interest.

"Listen, Chet," Mort said, suddenly, "I wouldn't butt in for worlds. Is this Gladys your sweetie? Are you engaged to her?"

"Not at all, not at all," Chet assured him.

"Then that settles it—come across with her address. I give you warning that here is a girl I am crazy about and when little Morty gets crazy over a girl it means that the girl will be crazy over him the moment she is privileged to see and speak with him—is that clear?"

"It's more than clear, Mort," Chet said, wearily. "It's the worst case of inferiority complex I ever saw."

BECOMES ANGRY

"Oh yeah? Getting a bit sarcastic, what? Listen, let me tell you—did you ever see——"

"You are asking—I thought you wanted to tell me."

"All right, all right, let me tell you—I'll have this beautiful little doll of a Gladys what's-her-name following me around like Mary's lamb the moment I get an introduction to her. What do you think of that, Chet, old sock?"

"What does the doctor say, Mort?"

"Doctor? What doctor?"

"Your doctor. What does he say about your malady?"

"Malady?"

"Of course — malady — you don't mean to tell me that your doctor hasn't told you?"

"What's this—a gag?"

"No," said Chet, "I'm serious. Hasn't your doctor told you about your case of pernicious ego?"

"Never mind, Chet—I'll bet you I'll have this Gladys girl chasing me up hill and down dale within a day after I meet her."

"Double what?"

"The hot air you are betting with."

"I'll bet you my set of Scotch golf clubs against that bum blue necktie you're wearing that this Gladys Homer falls for me within a day after we are introduced."

"It's a bet."

"Will you do the—"

"Well, you pop-eyed son-of-a wampus," Mort cried, "there she is—she's in this show—and you never tipped me."

He went over and stared at the photographs of Gladys Homer. It was a photograph of Gladys taken with a fragment of black drapery that did not hide many, if any, of her almost perfect curves.

"Listen, Chet—I'll run around back stage and meet Gladys myself. Pete Morin, the stage manager, will do the introducing."

"Don't bother Pete, Mort," Chet said, suddenly, "it was my plan to take you around back stage, but you had so darn much to say about yourself that I didn't get a chance."

"Thursday," Chet said, "I'll take the clubs out to the links and have one of the stewards burn my initials in them. You can't win this silly bet."

"Yeah? I'll win the bet and I'll win Gladys—if I want her."

"That ought to just about suffuse Gladys with joy. Come on."

Chet took Mortimer around back stage. When the chance came, Chet winked at Gladys and held his thumbs down, after the manner of Nero in the arena when a gladiator's fight didn't please him.

Gladys winked right back at Chet.

EXTENDS TIME LIMIT

Chet introduced Mortimer Ingalls and Gladys Homer.

Gladys had already disappeared. She knew that she would learn, all in due time, from Chet, why he had given her the signal to turn this chap down.

When Chet and Mort were outside again Chet began to laugh.

"Listen, I've got 24 hours—don't worry, you'll never get my golf clubs," Mortimer growled. He was still dazed over the manner in which Gladys had handled him.

"I'll give you two weeks more and win, Mort. I'll do more," and Chet spoke earnestly. "You run out to our place next week. The show closes Saturday. Gladys lives on a big estate with her mother. The place adjoins ours. You'll have every chance to meet her."

"I'll do it, Chet—and I'll show you something. I'll have her tagging me all over the country before the week is up."

Mortimer went out to Chet's place. He met Gladys every day. She was sweetly polite to him but never gave him a moment alone with her, never laughed at his jokes, never showed the slightest interest in him.

It was Millie Yeaton who confided to Mortimer something that gave him an idea.

"Gladys is in the pool every night at midnight," Millie told him, "the big pool down in the Italian garden. Gladys loves to swim; she's a natural swimmer. More than that, she—er—doesn't wear much of anything. She's in the pool alone."

"Thanks, little one," Mort said, already planning just what to do.

If Gladys loved swimming, then he could interest her, for Mort prided himself on his swimming and diving.

That night at midnight he strolled out of Chet's home. He was wearing a long raincoat over his bathing suit. He went across the grounds and over to the pool in the Italian garden on Mrs. Bishop's estate. Mrs. Bishop was the mother of Gladys, and had married oodles of what it takes.

Mortimer waited until 12. He couldn't see a soul. Then he heard a splash under the rustic bridge at the lower end of the pool.

Instantly he made a neat little dive into the water and set out in his best Australian crawl for the bridge.

MORTIMER EMBARRASSED

"Gladys—the name of an alligator—why, I thought—I was told—er—"

"Yeah, we told Millie to tell you."

"We? Who?"

"Gladys and myself—not Gladys, the 'gator, but Gladys, the girl—the girl I'm going to marry this fall—unless you take her away from me, Mort."

"Fat chance," said someone behind them.

It was Gladys—the girl, not the alligator. She and Chet strolled away, arms about each other. The others departed, giggling.

Mortimer stood on the edge of the pool, thinking embarrassed thoughts, nursing his chagrin and staring down into the water at Gladys—Gladys, the alligator, not Gladys, the girl.

A Shameful Situation

Calling on State Troopers to Protect Registrars Emphasizes Necessity for Civic Uprising.

The summoning of state troopers to Pittsburgh yesterday to protect the registrars in their task is but one of a number of recent incidents that emphasize the need for a civic uprising that will turn out of office the political gangsters responsible for the shameful situation.

The state troopers were called because the registrars could not depend on the police for adequate protection. The city police are completely under the control of the corrupt Republican machine, and of course could not be depended on to interfere with the machine's plans for stealing the election.

That is the machine's intention, to which was shown clearly enough will proceed with the assistance of the shameless subservient Board of Assessment and Revision of Taxes, in enrolling thousands of phantom voters.

The Registration Commission, appointed by Gov. Pinchot and free from machine domination, acted wisely in not relying on the police but in getting the protection of the state troopers instead.

It is questionable, however, if the Registration Commission, no matter how hard and zealously it works, will be able to prevent fraud at the polls.

It remains for the honest citizens to turn out on election day in numbers sufficiently large to outvote the machine's henchmen and phantoms.

An Acceptable Site

It Is Gratifying to Learn That Progress Is Being Made On the Psychiatric Hospital Project.

The three recent cases in which insane men ran amuck in the vicinity of Pittsburgh, killing people indiscriminately, and a rather disturbing report issued last week in regard to the prevalence of insanity have put thoughtful persons in a frame of mind to welcome eagerly the news that progress is being made on the state psychiatric hospital project.

The Legislature appropriated $25,000 at its last session to further plans for the erection of such an institution here. And now comes word that Dr. William C. Sandy, director of the State Bureau of Mental Health, has found the site for the hospital offered by the University of Pittsburgh to be acceptable.

Connected with the hospital will be a mental health clinic where patients may come for diagnosis and advice. Although the hospital will have beds for only 150 or 200 patients it is the expectation that it will give treatment to thousands in the clinic.

It will be the first institution of the kind in Pennsylvania, and the hopeful thing about it is that it will furnish long-needed facilities for early observation and care of persons who do not require commitment to an asylum, yet might require commitment if their cases should be neglected.

Johnson Speaks Truly

Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, does a distinct public service in calling attention to the dangerous purposes that are cloaked in innocent appearing words, such as "moratorium," and "revision," as applied to the debts owing the United States by its European debtors—"WEASEL WORDS," as the late President Roosevelt described them.

Ever since the close of the war, there has been a distinct purpose on the part of our European debtors to escape the payment of their just obligations to us.

Repudiation is an ugly word, and credit is an element of national strength which no country likes to part with.

But in the European mind there is DEEPLY IMPLANTED the feeling that there is some reason, which they find it hard to express clearly, why we should neither expect nor press for the repayment of our wartime loans.

The difficulty of communicating this view to the American people is recognized both at home and abroad by the international bankers, who are foremost in framing theories and sophistries to render the idea of debt cancellation less unpalatable to our people.

But the CANCELLATION of the European debts is what they are aiming at and pursuing steadfastly, if not noisily.

The recent difficulty experienced by Germany in meeting its short term loans, was eagerly seized upon, to apply the entering wedge of a "MORATORIUM."

This wedge apparently sticks, and now is followed up by the proposal to "CONSIDER" the cancellation of debts.

Far be it from the minds of the international bankers to cancel the European debt, with the inevitable result that the AMERICAN TAXPAYER would be obliged to shoulder the cost of the European war.

Oh, no—nothing of that sort, nothing could be further from the banker mind that that.

And yet, Senator Johnson speaks with flawless accuracy when he says that THAT IS JUST WHAT THEY HAVE IN MIND.

WE HAVE TAKEN THE FIRST STEP—"MORATORIUM."

WE ARE BIDDEN NOW TO TAKE THE SECOND STEP—"CONSIDERATION."

Cancellation will be reserved for the final act of this little drama, and will break upon our vision as the curtain falls—falls upon America's hopes for the honest repayment of the advances made by our people to rescue their European allies.

A Humane Engineman

Locomotive Operator Saves Deer Through Plan That Motorists Might Use to Save Rabbits.

Charles E. Coleman, a Pennsylvania Railroad engineman, runs a passenger train at night through a part of Western Pennsylvania in which deer are very numerous. He says it is not uncommon to see as many as 100 on one night.

But though deer on the railroad track at night become bewildered as the electric headlight of an approaching locomotive brings them into view and seem paralyzed with fright and scarcely able to move—although many fall victims to the fast passenger trains—Mr. Coleman has not killed a single one in his 20 years of railroading.

"All that an engineman needs to do," he says, "is to turn off the electric headlight for a tenth of a second, and your deer is gone. I do it for all wild life, even the lowly 'bunny,' and it works."

There is a suggestion here for motorists, who kill on the highways of Pennsylvania more rabbits than are shot by hunters. Most of these rabbits are run over at night. Like the deer they are bewildered by the headlights.

Go on with the story for yourself, we haven't the heart to write the details.

We do think, however, that when old man Prohibition "gets his," IF he ever does, which is a big IF, he WILL GET PLENTY.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

Are you big enough to give deserved credit to the young fellow in your establishment who does something superior in your line?

Instead of congratulating him do you feel resentment?

Is it because you are jealous of his ability and fear it may become known that he can approach you in quality of work that you won't praise him?

You can remember back to your childhood and how gratifying it was to hear the kind words of an older man.

Perhaps this young man may take your place later on, but what of it?

You were not to blame when you superseded old men in your young and more aggressive years and neither is he if he should take your place in the future.

The older men have not the fresh viewpoint, the enthusiasm, spirit and interest of youth.

Their work has lost the kick of newness and has grown monotonous.

There is nothing to be gained by refusing to give a younger fellow a boost when he passes you in the race.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK Sept. 4—Thoughts while strolling. James Montgomery Flagg suggests Bernard Shaw without a beard. Jack Pearl's awkward shyness off stage. Broadway's shuttered jewelry shops. And that spooky, dead-bulbed block-long Ronald Colman sign. The horsey crowd at Beefsteak Charley's.

E. D. Coblenz, a Santa Maria, Cal., boy who made good in the U. S. Fifteen years ago on Broadway one ran into such figures as George M. Cohan, Wilner and Fields and Willen Lackaye. And now look. Forty-second street too duplicates a lot of the Coney Island argle-bargle.

Brock Pemberton used to resemble a lanky bush league second baseman, but today he looks like a Wall street plutocrat. Believe I'll don flannels, buckskin shoes, a foulard tie and call myself Hilary. The boys of that type seem to have all the fun.

Whatever became of the silver flask business? Fred Astaire might be a leading drug clerk in Owensboro, Ky. Wish that Hollywood theater would get a few more renters. A creepy yarn at dinner last night—a guest told of a voice suddenly awakening him at 2 a. m. saying: "I'm all right, Charley."

The next morning he learned an old classmate died at that exact time. Nobody ever looks so frightened to me on the news reels as Andrew Mellon. Wonder when America will produce another Victor Herbert? Lyn Lary and his auburn haired bride. Mary Lawlor.

A tough season along Auto Row. But salesmen are still the sprucest in town. Gilbert White could double for Elbert Hubbard. When Jack Dempsey quit fighting, the ring lost 90 per cent of its glamour. Now they are saying Justice Crater passed through the morgue as "murdered and unidentified."

And that an explosion of scandal that will shock the town is near. A sudden shower and I'm glad my wife is not with me. I can never quite hail a taxi in the rain and there's always an argument. How thin the magazine. Look. But don't we all?

* * *

The New York hotel association is out to scalp hotel runners who meet trains, buses and private motorists posing as official city guides. Many average $200 a week by such chicanery. Their racket is to steer strangers from reputable hotels to shady side street hospices by declaring conventions have filled this hotel and that. When they enter hotels with the victims, prices immediately sky rocket and the runners and hotels split the gyp money. No hotel in New York is packed to capacity and not likely to be for six months.

* * *

For a few weeks this summer I joined the hatless army, chiefly because I lost a hat abroad and have a shaped head requiring a lid made to order. For a time I had a feeling of having lost something. Leaving theaters I would suddenly clap my hand to my head and start back. The greatest objection, however, to one of my sedate years is the feeling of going collegiate. I always expected some upstart to yell: "Look at Pappy."

* * *

The big compensation in going without a hat is the avoidance of annoying hat checking. Aside from the economic phase, the search for the check and the proper change is one of the nuisances of eating out. I am not converted wholly to the hatless idea but I've stopped sneering.

* * *

Many hatless recruits were those who hoped it would prove at least a palliative for falling hair. There is no conclusive record it does. This was Earl Carroll's reason—probably the first hatless man in New York—18 years ago. He still doesn't wear a hat but his hair thins with the same regularity.

A former Follies tenor, singing in a Brooklyn Chinese restaurant illustrates the fickle fortunes of Rialto folk. Ten years ago, riding the top wave, his pay check was $1,500 a week. Today it is $60 for four songs a night and a free midnight dinner.

A distressing fancy assails me as to where a columnist lands when he hits the skids for columnar oblivion. As a reportorial stunt I once slept in a cheap 20-cents-a-night lodging house next criu to a fellow who kept me awake all night talking about and praising himself. I often wonder!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You'd like to do something in life . . . like to put over Something Big . . . and you're sure you could if only you didn't have "so many ups and downs."

Ups and downs—they're your heaviest handicap, aren't they? Everything will be going fine. You'll be contented, confident, full of energy and ambition. Then suddenly, for no good reason, down you'll go in the dumps. Happiness—blotto. Ambition—a flop. Energy—nil. Why?

You don't know why. Your health is good enough. Conditions are fair. Yet there you are, wiped off the list just as you were getting a nice start.

Ever since you were a child, it has been like that. At first your ups and downs bewildered you. Spoiled all your fun. Then you decided that you had a secret ailment, peculiar to you. Other people weren't like that—you could tell it by the way they acted, so sure and easy. They couldn't possibly suffer as you did and act that way. No—you were different. More sensitive and high strung. Things hurt you worse—left scars on you. Inferiority complexes.

There was a melancholy satisfaction in believing this. Of course it didn't cure the ups and downs, but it secretly flattered you to think that you weren't like everybody else. And, besides, it made a wonderful alibi when you fell down on a job.

Yet, as the years have gone on, you've come to feel that it isn't such a snap to be the way you are—that ups and downs are a serious nuisance. If there were only something you could do about them—

There is.

In the first place, get over the idiotic notion that you have a monopoly on ups and downs. Stop using that notion as a sop for your vanity and an alibi for your laziness and cowardice. EVERYBODY HAS UPS AND DOWNS. Everybody has spells of restlessness, timidity, rebellion, self-pity and inertia. And there's no getting rid of these spells . . . FOR UPS AND DOWNS ARE THE PRICE WE PAY FOR OUR HALF-BAKED HUMANITY.

No one is 100 per cent human yet. Human beings are still part brute, part man. Sometimes more man than brute. Sometimes more brute than man. But always there's that struggle going on inside, between the two natures . . . between brute fear and man courage . . . brute stupidity and man intelligence . . . brute laziness and man ambition . . . brute indifference and man pride.

ALWAYS THAT STRUGGLE GOING ON, WITH THE MAN PULLING FORWARD AND THE BRUTE TUGGING BACK—

Why do you have the ups and downs? That's why. Because the brute and the man in you are yanking you in different directions. Every time you fight for the "up" you're helping man—every time you yield to a "down" you are surrendering to the brute.

Ups and downs—of course you have them. Stop peeving about them. Be glad you have them. They are a sign of something great in you. THEY ARE A CHALLENGE.

We Must Finance the Fight Against Doles

By Claude G. Bowers

Samuel Untermyer thinks the action of President Hoover in asking his "commission" to raise $8,000,000 by private subscription for the feeding through the Winter of many more than 8,000,000 in dire distress an "idiotic gesture." Perhaps the characterization is a bit extreme. Possibly "ignorant" would be fairer than "idiotic." There have been men and women in positions of responsibility who have seemed cruel when they were merely ignorant of the plight of the poor.

Marie Antionette, told that people were unable to get bread, asked why they did not eat cake, but that was ignorance, not inhumanity. She meant it. And when the Irish were lying dead from starvation all over the countryside in one of the famines, the then Duke of York remarked in the house of peers that he understood a very nutritious food could be made out of the dried leaves of the forest. He was not the savage he seemed. His malady was ignorance. If President Hoover imagines that $8,000,000 raised by private subscription will prevent starvation in America this winter, he is still ignorant of the country's desperate condition.

* * *

Pleas for an Extra Session Lightly Treated

The President's mind does not run to men, women and children so much as to money. When the threatened collapse of Germany endangered the enormous loans of American bankers he could be aroused to action; and so the moratorium. But he is still complaining that there has been a vast exaggeration of the number of unemployed, although the reports of charity organizations everywhere refute his skepticism.

The Municipal Lodging House of New York City has just submitted some appalling figures that should illuminate him. It reports that during the 10 years preceding the panic it furnished lodgings for 945,386 people and meals for 2,090,872; that during the last year and a half it has furnished lodgings for 916,121 persons and meals for 2,823,047. And it announces that this winter it will need 800,000 beds and 3,000,000 meals. This is one organization in one city.

Every one but the President knows that, this winter, millions will face the possibility of starvation, and the national government marks time. Pleas for an extra session of Congress, to make provision now for the crisis that is not four months ahead, are treated lightly. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

* * *

A Depressing Picture Of Our Rich Country

Mr. Untermyer paints a depressing picture of conditions in this, the richest country in the world:

"With our granaries overflowing, our warehouses crammed with cotton, our banks glutted with idle money, with too much oil, copper, coal, iron—too much of everything, except heart and brains—one-fourth of our population is or will shortly be going hungry."

Within the month we have walked the streets of Paris, Rome and Florence without being approached by a single person asking alms; on the first day of our return we were accosted by six men asking money in the City of New York. We would do better to transfer a portion of our pity from the plight of Europe to the plight of America.

* * *

Urges Action Upon $5,000,000,000 Loan Plan

Mr. Untermyer urges the President to summon an extra session of Congress to act upon the plan of Mr. Hearst for a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan. The bonds would be oversubscribed; the money could be speedily set to work in putting men to work, and some of the money that gluts the banks could do the work of humanity.

No one was staggered when such loans were made to carry on the destructive work of war. Enthusiastically we hailed the opportunity to subscribe the money to be used for the purposes of destruction, and it would be a rotten civilization that would think less of an opportunity to subscribe to the work of construction. The average person, with heart and brain, is more interested in saving than in taking human life.

Nor is it an answer to say that the liberty loans were for the preservation of the nation and our civilization; that is the purpose of the prosperity loan.

* * *

Dole Not Involved In Proposed Loan

Nor is a dole involved in the proposed $5,000,000,000 loan any more than in the $20,000,000 appropriation asked by Roosevelt. These sums are needed now to give men work, that dole may not be necessary to prevent starvation. Unless a way is found to furnish men who want to work an opportunity, in self-respect, to earn their bread and feed their families, we shall ultimately come to dole—or revolution.

Men will fight before they will starve, and that is as true of bankers and captains of industry as of ditch diggers.

Within less than a year after the beginning of the war the late Senator Beveridge predicted the dole in England after an extensive study of conditions there. This sounds like prophecy:

"When the soldiers lay aside their uniforms, and hand over to the government their rifles, may they not say something like this:

"'I was willing to fight for the country, and the government cared for me while I was doing it; now I am willing to work for the country. I am not willing to see my wife and children perish from hunger and cold. If the nation could feed, clothe and pay me for the destructive work I did for it in time of war, why can it not pay, feed and clothe me for the constructive work I am anxious to do for it in time of peace?'"

Or, if a liberty loan in time of war, why not a prosperity loan in these more trying days of peace?

* * *

Roosevelt's Action Is a Challenge

The action of Gov. Roosevelt is a challenge to President Hoover. One acts, the other issues statements; one faces, the other evades responsibility; one summons an extra session to provide "immediate relief," and the other stubbornly refuses to do so; one concedes that it is the function of society, organized into government, to act, when men who want to work are starving, and the other insists that government has no duty and that the hungry must wait on the slow processes of private charity.

The public will pass judgment on these points of view.

The time has come for the national administration to turn off the flow of talk, and turn on the flow of money. Conferences without action are as banquets without food.

The hour has struck for Mr. Hoover to take a page from the book of Franklin Roosevelt and summon Congress to his aid.

NEW THINGS DAILY

By Archibald Henderson

There is an old saying, which is ridiculously false: "There is nothing new under the sun." It would be much nearer the truth, in this city of multiplex and multifarious scientific invention, theorizing and discovery, to say that there is something new under the sun every day. One of the easiest and most fatal of blunders is to attribute to the ancients discoveries which have been made only in modern times. A careful examination will usually show that the discoveries of the ancient scientists only superficially resemble the more accurate findings of modern science. Consider, for example, the theories of matter propounded by the ancients. In the first place, undue credit has been accorded Lucretius on account of the scientific theories so interestingly and fully set forth in the famous poem on the nature of things, De Rerum Natura. We know now that these theories of matter are not primarily due to Lucretius, who lived in the first century B. C. Lucretius, as a poet, was merely marshaling and expounding the views of scientific thinkers who had long preceded him: Leucippus and Democritus, who lived in the fifth century B. C., and Epicurus who flourished about 300 B. C.

It should be made clear that these theories were not physical in the sense that we use that term today. They were more metaphysical than physical. There was a small substratum of facts to go on; and upon this foundation was erected a huge theoretical superstructure. No scientist of repute today would venture to formulate a theory upon such a small collection of facts as the Greeks, who had not yet discovered the value of experimental and laboratory science. The views of the Greeks were not pure thought based upon facts alone; they were usually mystical and superstitious, founded upon mythological and astrological theories and beliefs. Magic, too, played its part in the thinking of the Greeks.

Nevertheless, as has been well said, perhaps the greatest idea bequeathed to chemistry by the Greek philosophers was the theory that matter is composed of atoms. In substance, the ideas of chief value, put forward by the Greeks were, as summarized by Holmyard in Makers of Chemistry: That matter cannot be created and is indestructible; that its texture is discrete; that it is composed of atoms which are invisible; that between the atoms is only empty space; that the atoms are in constant motion; and lastly that substances differ in accordance with the nature, number and arrangement of their atoms. The significance of all these acute theories was not realized until two centuries later.
